NORWAY VICINITY

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. C. Wood spent the week-end with Mr. Wood's brother and family at North Conway, also called on Miss Marjorie Buswell at Conway.

Remember thin ice is dangerous! Small boys should keep off. Don't get brave by taking a risk and be fooled and drowned.

The Daughters of Veterans will meet in regular session, Friday evening, at 7.30 o'clock. There will be a full rehearsal in preparation for annual inspection which takes place December 3rd. A social hour will follow the business and the committee in charge includes Mrs. Mary Kimball, Mrs Lela McAllister and Ida Kimball.

Oliver Buck of Hebron was walking on Main street, Tuesday. He uses a crutch but gets about in pretty good fashion. He has been laid up in the hospital and at home since last May. The broken bone has mended and he hopes to do away with crutches pretty soon.

Francis W. Gray has returned to his home at Worcester, Mass., after spending several days with Carl V. Gammon and family.

Miss Louie Patch has returned from Lowell, and will stay with her brother, Frank McAlister for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorin McKeen will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McKeen of West Paris for Thanksgiving

Miss Dora McLucas is visiting her sister, Miss Emily at Brookline, Mass.

Mrs. Carrie E. Russell and daughter, Mrs. Agnes M. Jewett will spend Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Russell at Yarmouth.

Miss Violet Royce of Boston, Mass., is the new assistant in the Ideal Beauty Parlor. Miss Royce has eight years experience in all branches of beauty culture and comes to Norway, highly recommended.

Mrs. W. H. Stone underwent a critical operation at the Central Maine General hospital at Lewiston last Thursday. She has a private room. Favorable reports about her condition have been received.

Highway patrolmen are putting the cement road in condition for winter. Joints and cracks have been filled with tarvia and pulverized stone.

Harry Thurlow has moved his family from Cornish to Earle Swan's house on Alpine street. They lived opposite the Pine Grove Cemetery for some years before moving away nearly two years ago. Mrs. Thurlow's father, Charles Crockett, who lived in the family for some time, died in Cornish last winter after a long period of failing health.

Holiday business has been good at the C. F. Tubbs Co. with several rooms working evenings. Early snow suitable for sleds and skis would keep the factory going for nearly right up to Christmas, as shipping is picked outside of regular orders at present.

Several young ladies motored from Lewiston Tuesday evening for bowling at Hayes's alleys.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lord and children spent Thanksgiving day and the week-end with relatives in Lewiston, with prospects for skating or sledding on the holiday. Many persons not so old as myself Thanksgivings when skating was an old story and the family pung overhauled for the big gatherings. The goodies of pumpkin pies and plum pudding that filled our waist line to a bursting point are now only visions of the past. Gone are the moaster dinners that followed the long drawn out preaching service.

A good neighbor has sent in a chicken and we are having it cooked for Thanksgiving. It is a big one and will last until New Years unless we have company. The chicken came from the Goodwin Farm.

Lawrence M. Carroll has been drawn as a juror for the December term of United States District Court in Portland.

Glenn R. McIntire and Miss Marguerite G. Pearman left Tuesday to spend Thanksgiving Day at Miss Pearman's home in Cambridge, Mass.

Several persons in Norway are reported to have been nipped in a magazine subscription scheme played here not many weeks ago by Edward E. Fox of Washington, D. C., who was arrested at Rumford and bound over on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. There are victims in South Paris, Bethel, Berlin, N. H. and elsewhere. They say the plan as outlined by the representative was a money saver, providing, of course, that the deal was above board, but as alleged the game appears to be one of the easy money kind.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. C. Wood will spend the holiday with Mrs Wood's niece and family at Winthrop making a family party of twelve to dine.

W. F. Kneeland called in, Wednesday, and showed us a blueish pansy picked that day from the garden. Del Pennock has also brought in a bunch of dandelion blossoms.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 2, the Wm. Henry Stone Post, American Legion, and Auxiliary will entertain the Posts and Auxiliaries of South Paris and Oxford. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock followed by dancing and a general good time. All Legion members and Auxiliary members are urged to be present as a large attendance is desired. An enjoyable evening is assured for all.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Brown will entertain at Thanksgiving, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Brown and son, William; Mr. and Mrs. Elon L. Brown and sons, Horace and Paul; Mr. and Mrs. Grant Abbott and Lona and Buddie Hunton, Mr. and Mrs. Carl L. Brown and children, Alice, Carle, Jr., Viola and Alvin, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hayes and son Lester, of Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Elon Brown and sons will start, Friday, for Massachusetts, for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. McIntire will join a family gathering for Thanksgiving dinner at East Waterford with a niece, Mrs. R. B Pinkham.

The Browning Reading Club will meet Monday evening with Miss Nellie Andrews, hostess. Roll call, current events, reading, Mrs. Eva Kimball.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Parrin and family and Perley Foss have returned from North Hyde Park, Vt., having been called there by the critical illness of Mr. Parrin's father.

Norway Boy Accidentally Killed

Shot Through Heart by a Gun Accidentally Discharged by His Brother

Fred Pingree Dunn, aged 12, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Dunn, of Northwest Norway, was shot through the heart, Saturday, Nov. 20, when a 22 calibre rifle carried by his 15-year-old brother, George, was accidentaly discharged.

The boys were hunting in the woods a short distance from their home, in climbing over rocks, George slipped and in some unknown manner the rifle was discharged. Fred fell on his face and was dead when his brother reached him.

Running back to the farm house, George told his mother what happened and the father, who was away from home, was summoned by telephone.

Dr. W. B. Raymond of South Paris, medical examiner, was notified and after a careful examination, adjudged it a case of accidental shooting.

Fred P. Dunn was born in Norway Sept. 26, 1914, and was a favorite among his schoolmates in the home district. Besides his parents, he leaves two brothers and one sister.

The funeral, held at the home, Tuesday afternoon, was attended by Rev. Olin B. Tracy. Burial was in Norway Pine Grove Cemetery. The bearers were four schoolmates at Northwest Norway. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION IS PROGRESSING

The playground project of the Norway Athletic Association is gaining friends every day and members are being enrolled to encourage outdoor activities in the community.

No location has been secured as yet, but the committee has at least two fields under serious consideration. It is not easy to make a decision, for the Association is far-seeing and building for the future. Business men behind the project are after something that should endure, and provide our young people a suitable place for clean sports.

Every membership card sold will aid to keep town baseball active and assist to create and keep alive other activities which the Association may elect to foster.

All of the solicitors have not reported this week to Principal George Lord, but the following names have been enrolled at the office since last Thursday:

Eliot A. Fuller	L. V. Ashton
Z. L. Merchant	Wm Knight
Dr. B. F. Bradbury	Elmer D. Packard
Albert Lafrance	H. B. Foster
S. R. Smith	A. J. McCready
Miss Flora Stevens	Miss Blanche Lafrance

RED CROSS DRIVE COMING

Rev. Marguerite Pearman will be in charge of the roll call drive, to commence Monday, November 29, and close December 4. Every effort will be made to secure two hundred names on the Norway Red Cross roll. There has been a generous response thus far, and many citizens realize the practical work which can be accomplished even with limited funds.

Attention is directed to the splendid efforts of the Loan Closet Committe. Five layettes have been given; three obstetrical packages furnished; a nurse provided; bed pans, ice bags, sheets, pillow cases and money donated in many worthy cases. Altogether, twelve families have been assisted. Free expert swimming and life saving instructions were made possible for a large class of young people last summer, and it is the purpose to continue the plan next season for a week or ten days, if the funds will permit. The committe wishes to provide a number of layettes for the local doctors to distribute and plan other necessities for the comfort of unfortunates.

One-half of the dollar, the membership fee, will be for community use and justly applied.

CHRISTMAS SALE

St Mary's Guild of the Christ Church will hold their annual Christmas sale at Legion Hall, Thursday Dec. 2, at 2.30. The committees are as follows:

General Chairman—Mrs. Bella Fletcher.
Food—Mrs. Martha Lyseth, Mrs. Alice Fuller
Candy—Mrs. Marguerite Dyer, Mrs. Esther Rich.
Household Linen Table—Mrs. Helen Bickford, Mrs. Ruth Huston.
Handkerchiefs and Fancy Articles—Mrs. Winnifred Bickford, Mrs. Helena Nelson, Mrs. R. A. Forde.
Aprons—Mrs. Mosher, Mrs. Howard Potter.
Quilts—Mrs. Iona Brown. Mrs. Evis Cook, Mrs. Frank Witham.

CHURCH BELLS AND VICTORY

Referring to Mrs. Chipman's protest against permitting the Church bells to be rung by the schoolboys in celebrating their football victory, I am remined that some years ago the late Edward L. Parris, in giving a bell to one of the churches on Paris Hill, prescribed that the church door should always be left unlocked on the night before Fourth of July, in order that the boys might get in to ring it to their hearts' content. Bells and victory belong together. The note of triumph deserves to be sounded.

Weeks to Christmas

BEST DOG, MASTER PHOTO

Shortie Cook, magazine writer, barber and winged bird hunter, recently introduced us to a photograph of himself and dog. It is a daisy. Yes, two of 'em. Cook says the dog is handsome. Yes, two fine looking gentlemen!

Mr. Cook regrets that the picture has been sold to the publisher of Forest and Stream for a large price and he can't furnish his friends with a copy. You can view and listen by calling at his Fine Art Studio, Main Street.

Christmas goods are appearing in the stores which is a hint for the youngsters to save their pennies. Traders predict large business and are preparing for the expected rush, which will depend in a large measure on weather conditions.

"Along the Missouri" Big Success

Interesting Drama Finely Presented at Opera House

Harry Van Demarks' comedy drama, "Along the Missouri," presented by local talent under the direction of Edward L. Burnell, was received with enthusiasm at Norway Opera House, Tuesday evening. One of the largest crowds assembled in years for a dramatic offering, greeted the favorites in the characters portrayed.

The four-act comedy was an old standby and reflects the type of melodrama popular years ago, but the human element there, is ever new. The love and pathos, sinister scheming and dramatic climaxes will never be thrown in discard. A story of the peaceful home of the Watsons threatened to be lost by the unscrupulous designs of a crook, Randolph Radbourne, while the innocent suffer mental tortures under pressure from the villian, is a plot that will never fail to arouse the sympathies of an audience.

This injustice is the foundation for the action through "Along the Missouri," and thrills as the story develops. Love-making by John Watson and Virginia Maffat, which has the sweetness, then bitter disapointment which eventually changes to mutual happiness, is a contrast to the sordid side of the picture. The reformation of Dustin Barnes and a reconciliation with his wayward wife, Kate Patton, is one of the outstanding pictures. There is laughter as well as sighs and tears for Bill Watson is an outstanding figure with his quaint humor while Rip Storey and Aunt Tillie are characters that just keep the audience in a roar.

Everything works out all right after three acts of suspense and the villiany is exposed. Possibly he escapes too easily, however the sweethearts are united and aspirations fulfilled.

Victor Partridge was "William Watson," known as "kind Old Bill," He came within a nick of losing the homestead but the tramp he befriended came to the rescue.

Olin B. Tracy impersonated "John Watson" his son, who won a great fight for a seat in the legislature. He also won, then lost and finally secured Virginia Maffat after a series of adventures brought about by the villian.

Edward L. Burnell as "Randolph Radbourne", the scheming financier, portrayed the crook and bad man in general. For awhile his schemes worked beautifully with success well nigh clinched. The crash came suddenly and he disappeared from the picture.

Amy Marie Tracy represented "Virginia Maffat" deeply in love with John but a tool for her father's financial schemes until the real womanly instincts rebelled and she was united to the person she loved.

Annie Knight was "Kate Patton," the village school teacher, who was estranged from her husband, Dustin Barnes, and living with the Watsons, who knew nothing of her past. Husband and wife were united by a chain of unusual circumstances.

Stephen Bradeen played the part of "Dustin Barnes," a down and out hasbeen, until put right by the Watsons. He went West, staged a come-back and struck a rich mine. Returning to the farm he not only repayed his benefactors but settled accounts with Radbourne, the arch villian.

Elon L. Brown apeared as "Manders Maffat," a country banker and Virginia's father. Dabbling in stocks and falling into the clutches of Radbourne, brought him to the brink of ruin. The Tramp, whom he kicked from his door, returned good for evil by taking up a big loan held by the ever present villian.

Alice Lewis Skillings impersonated "Aunt Tillie," a genuine maiden lady of the old school and rather snappy. If she had love affairs they were not brought to the front, her business was to keep Rip Storkey from messing things.

Herbert Butler as "Rip Storkey," William Watson's hired boy and red headed, was a glutton for making trouble. He fell into the well, swiped apples and caused no end of torment for "Old Bill." His mission was to appear at the most critical moments when lovers are at their best and three is a crowd.

Music between the acts was furnished by four member of the high school orchestra, Paul Brown, Kenneth Goodwin, Evelyn Gilman and George Stevens.

The play was presented under the auspices of the Congregational church. At least $125 will be added to the treasury.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS WORK

The holiday season is fast approaching and we are again reminded of our Community Christmas work. This is a community affair and everyone in town is invited to have a share in it. In the past, the donations have been very generous and much has been done to bring cheer and comfort to the sick and shut-ins as well as to the needy, not only at Christmas time, but all through the year.

While it is impossible to give a complete report, some of the work that the W. C. T. U. has done during the past year with the aid of the Community Christmas donations, may be of interest. Over fifteen hundred articles of clothing and bedding have been given out, many of which were new. Over $200.00 has been expended for provisions beside many boxes of food and vegetables that have been donated. 26 pairs of new mittens, 45 new toys, 28 jars of jelly, 48 bouquets; 11 growing plants and 32 cheer boxes have been reported given out also 37 calls on sick and shut-ins.

The committee in charge will appreciate the support of the townspeople again this year. Contributions of money may be sent to the treasurer, Harriet Brown, other donations may be left with Miss Etta Noyes or Mrs. Edith Edwards.

EASTERN STAR

The regular meeting of Oxford Chapter, 168, O. E. S. will be held Tuesday evening Nov 30. It will be observed as Past Matrons' and Past Patrons' night. Supper will be served at 6.30 by the men in charge. The committee: Lewis I. Gilbert, Leroy Spiller, Edward McCormack, Fred S. Brown, Ray H. Eastman, Arthur W. Easton, Ralph S. Osgood, Walter Noyes, Philip F. Stone, Elmer D. Packard, Olney J. Burgess, Charles Akers.

Baptist

The Baptist church is Fundamentalist. Proud and glad to be. We have no doubts about the Bible being the Word of God and perfectly reliable. If you have any questions about the reality of the Joshua miracle, or the Jonah story, or the Virgin Birth, or such like, come and hear the pastor, or attend our men's Bible Class, Sunday at 12, when such are freely, frankly and reverantly discussed. We invite you to our Thanksgiving Day C E. meeting at 7.30. A time of real praise and prave arnd testimony. Topic, "How praise God from whom all blessings flow." Leader, Mrs. Florence Card.

Sunday: Services at 10.45 and 7. Bible School at 12. Our evening meeting has a steadily increasing attendance and interest. Our Loyalty Campaign is going fine. Larger attendance than ever before.

Methodist

Jazziteers 1454; J. R. Co. 1423

The Norway Jazziteers topped Henry Vancourt's shoemakers Friday evening, at Parrin's Alley, with 31 pins to the good, making a good start in the opening encounter and holding a lead through the second sheet was the pep that did the trick. The Jazz Boys cobbed up 35 pins in the opening frame, but stepped back a little during the next session. In the third attack, Henry's crew put up a 500 total against 486 and again cut the fast steppers' wide margin.

Delmont of the Jellerson-Rafter Co., led the field on a total of 330, and made second place with 124 for a single. Black Smith copped first place in high singles with 128, and second position for totals.

OLD PICTURE ON LAZY WALLS

An old picture hangs on the Weary Walls, showing Norway as it was 30 or more years ago. The picture is surrounded by 16 of the aggressive business firms of that day. All but three have passed from their scene of action. A majority have closed the door for the last time.

Wm. C. Leavitt, the giver of the picture, V. W. Hills and C. F. Ridlon survive in business. They alone of the sixteen are sticking to it and plodding on in the same business.

The view was taken from Pike Hill and shows the then aggregation of village scenes and splendor as gathered by Jack Swan, artist; advertising was sold by him and the printing done in this office.

PYRAMID PARTY

Mrs. Rose Everett entertained ten guests, two four's and one two group for a pleasant afternoon, Thursday. She served cake and ice cream during the evening, which was spent socially. Her four groups were Mrs. Eva Frost, Mrs. Nora Bradbury, Mrs. Esther Rich, Mrs. Esther Lapham; Mrs. Grace Bennett, Mrs. Sadie Lapham, Miss Jessie Everett, Mrs. Addie Lovejoy for the four's, and for the two, Mrs. Bertha Wentzell and Mrs. Florence Knightly.

Norway High School

A profit of $238.55 was made from the high school fair.

A banquet for the football squad was held at the Legion Hall, Thursday, Nov. 18. It was given by the American Legion. A delicious menu was served, consisting of: tomato bisque, chicken pie, mashed potato, string beans, fruit salad, lemon, custard, and apple pie and coffee. After the banquet, everybody adjourned to the lobby. At this time Kenneth Aldrich was elected as captain for the next year. Football letters were awarded to the following: Captain Matherson, Aldrich, Lewis, Ashton, Batchelder, Clark, Holden, N. Goodwin, K. Goodwin, Hall, Barker, Locke, Favor, Taylor, Greenleaf, Everett and Manager Hasty.

Registration for Norway evening school will be held at the Norway High School building on November 29, at 8 o'clock p. m. If a sufficient number of pupils are present on this date to warrant running the evening school, the special courses will be given, but if only a few appear, the school will not continue.

At a Caduceus Board meeting, Tuesday morning, Nov. 25, Miss Bertha Towne was elected Literary Editor for this year. Miss Denise Langlois held this office, but as she moved away she could not fulfill her position.

The Girls' Basket Ball Interclass Series commenced Monday night, November 22. The Seniors won over the Sophomores by a score of 30-11. The Juniors overtook the Freshmen with a score of 41-13. The next game will be in the near future.

The Girls' Basket Ball schedule for the coming season is as follows:

Dec. 3, Woodstock at Norway (pending).
Dec. 10, Woodstock at Bryant Pond (pending).
Dec. 15, Bridgton High at Bridgton.
Jan. 7, Bridgton High at Norway.
Jan. 14, Rumford at Rumford (pending).
Jan. 15, Mexico at Mexico
Jan. 21, South Paris at Norway.
Jan. 28, Gould's at Bethel.
Feb. 4, M. S. of Commerce at Norway.
Feb. 11, Gould's at Norway.
Feb. 18, Rumford at Norway (pending).
Feb. 25, South Paris at South Paris.
Mar. 4, Mexico at Norway.

Ten volumes of books concerning messages and papers from Presidents were given to the school by A. L. Sanborn.

The Freshman and Sophomore Agricultural Classes, November 23 and 24, were devoted to killing and dressing fowls fattened during the course. These birds are to be marketed by the boys.

Fred P. Lorring, who was Instructor of Agriculture in Presque Isle when Mr. Brown was doing apprentice teaching, visited the Agricultural Department on Tuesday, November 16. He plans in the future to give short courses in agriculture in the surrounding towns of Auburn.

The Seniors in agriculture are studying different methods and score card for proper selecting of good farms.

Active practice for basket ball has started for boys hoping to make the high school team. There is a large group and enough material for two quintets with subs to spare. A fast going varsity crew seems possible even at this early date. Candidates for the girls' team have been working some time under Miss Anna B. Longfellow and good material for a fast team is evident.

Mrs. May Darrach of Edgartown, Mass. is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Helena Nelson and family.

Forrest Longley is spending Thanksgiving and a number of days with friends in Medford, Mass.

Mrs. Mary J. Bennett will be the guest Thursday, of Carroll Greenleaf and family at Northwest Norway.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hosmer and daughter Pauline, will dine Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hosmer, Paris Street.

St. Mary's Guild will meet Friday evening with Mrs. Bella Fletcher to finish up the work for the fair.

Maurice Goodwin who has been visiting in Norway for several weeks will return to his home for Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley D. True passed Sunday at Bath.

Advertiser's Smallest Edition

For the last twelve months the smallest number of papers—Norway Advertisers—for any edition, was 2450 copies.

For the year previous, or 1925, the smallest edition was 25 copies less than this year, or 2425 copies.

For 1924, the lowest number printed for any one week was 2375.

The year prior, or 1923, the smallest edition was 2325 copies.

During this period, the Advertiser has been increased in size, also in price. Changed from a six column quarto to seven columns to a page and the subscription price raised fifty cents. The enlargement was made necessary to care for increasing demand for the local news and business of this section.

It is possible the paper is a little large for its field, but if so, it can be reduced.

Cruelty to Birds

Boys Putting Wrong Use to Their Air Rifles—The Practice Should be Stopped

The use of firearms is forbidden in Ordway's Grove and the surrounding woods, and notices are posted to that effect, but the small boy with his air rifle and bean shooters infest the woods, and use the birds and squirrels for their targets and make danger for humans. The boys not only infest the woods, but are provalent in the village and the pigeons seem to be their target, with the result that many birds have only one eye, or one leg, or some toes are missing, or a wing broken, or tail feathers missing. Smaller birds have had to take their share of what the boys call fun.

Something should be done to prevent this sort of "sport."

DOCTOR VISITS HOME TOWN

Dr. F. E. Drake, who is stopping with his sister, Mrs. Johnston of Portsmouth, N. H., was an overnight visitor here. He came with his nephew, Carl Hayden, whose time was limited.

Rev. and Mrs. Olin B. Tracy and Rev. O. H. Tracy, D. D. are at the home of Mrs. Tracy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Plestridge at New Hampton, N. H. for the holiday.

Miss Addie Longley of Simmons College and room mate Miss Ann Nevin of Washington state, are Thanksgiving guests at L. M. Longley's.

SOUTH PARIS NEWS

Grange Notes

Paris Grange met Saturday, Nov. 20, at 2 p. m., Worthy Master P. A. Millett in the chair. Four were elected to membership by ballot. It was voted to send Worthy Master and wife to the State Grange and pay their expenses. A report of the National Grange was made by several who attended it (about 40 went from Paris Grange).

The next meeting of Paris Grange will be its annual meeting and will be held Dec. 4th. A picnic lunch, the Grange to furnish coffee. The first and second degrees will be conferred in the afternoon.

The ladies' degree team are requested to meet December 1st, at 7:30 for a rehearsal.

Pomona Grange held its annual meeting with Paris Grange, Dec. 7, 1926.

Sullivan Took French Leave

Albert Sullivan of Rumford, a trusted inmate at the county jail, made a getaway in the rain storm, Friday morning, and has not returned.

He was sent to the court house basement to dispose of some rubbish, but the lure of the great outdoors was too strong and he escaped through a back door into the woods nearby. He was without hat or coat and not dressed for the downpour that hindered Sheriff Torrey and the deputies who searched the woods and highways for several hours.

Sullivan was doing ninety days on the charge of intoxication and well along on the sentence.

Fire Alarm System Installed

The Federal fire alarm system for So. Paris Village Corporation has been installed with fifteen boxes placed to cover the district. The installation was in charge of the Central Maine Power Co. that will furnish juice to operate a five horse-power electric motor for the siren located on the central fire station.

There is nothing to keep from freezing and the annual maintenance charge should be small. According to the schedule, electricity cost is about five dollars per month.

The whistle is a screecher and under normal conditions may be heard two or three miles.

Box locations are as follows:

No. 12 Market Square.
No. 14 Cor. Main St. and Skillings Ave.
No. 13 Corner Main and Pine Sts.
No. 32 Corner Main and Gary Sts.
No. 33 Corner Main and Charles Sts.
No. 34 Corner Charles and Gary Sts.
No. 15 Corner Pine St and Briggs Ave.
No. 16 Corner Church and Gothic Sts.
No. 21 Corner Gothic St. and Western Ave.
No. 42 Corner East Main and Oxford Sts.
No. 43 Corner Hill and Brook Sts.
No. 24 Corner Hill and Spring Sts.
No. 23 Corner High and Penley Sts.
No. 22 Cor. Nichols St and Western Ave.
No. 25 Corner Park and Porter Sts.

Leona Butler the two-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Butler, has recovered from her experiences in the fifteen foot well and suffered no serious effects.

About ninety attended the Universalist parish supper and get-to-gether at the church, Thursday evening. The new pastor, Rev. O. E. Bryant, and Mrs. Bryant and their younger son were introduced by Harry M. Shaw.

The Kupple Klub and invited guests observed the birthday of Mrs. C. M. Merrill by attending the chicken pie supper at the Baptist church, Friday evening. After supper they went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fletcher for bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Easson of Portland and Mrs. Ida Titcomb were Thanksgiving guests of Howard Shaw and family.

Shaw's orchestra played for the Masquerade Ball at West Paris, Wednesday evening and will furnish music for the Pythian Ball at Norway Opera House, Thursday evening. On Friday night they play at North Buckfield where there is dancing and an oyster supper.

John Wight, the weather observer, reports that the morning temperature has averaged two degrees higher every day this month than for a corresponding period last year.

Mrs. Alice Dole of Portland spent a few days last week with Mrs. Howard Shaw.

Traffic was quite heavy, Sunday, over the new cement road to West Paris. Six miles of cement and altogether about one mile of uncertainty over dirt construction are the conditions found over the trail.

A SPLENDID CHRISTMAS GIFT

THE NORWAY ADVERTISER
(OXFORD COUNTY, ME.)

If Cost is a Consideration,

how can you possibly make your good wishes felt, throughout an entire year, for so trivial a sum?

If the Decision Turns on Sentiment,

how will it be possible to keep alive your own memory better than by placing before your friend, week by week, the happenings of Oxford County, or of that part of it which is or has been your home and his?

If a Practical Gift is Sought,

What could be of more actual value than week by week information of what is going on in Oxford County, that section in which has occurred and will occur more events of vital interest to you and your friends than all the world besides?

Every consideration makes the "Norway Advertiser" the gift among gifts, to anyone who lives or has ever resided in Oxford County.

Use of this blank will eliminate all detail so far as you are concerned. If the Advertiser goes as a gift, we shall be glad to advise the party that it is from you.

KEEP ON A-GOING

Jes' keep on a-strivin' and hope for the best.
Don't give up the game an' retire in dismay
'Cause hammers are thrown when you'd like a bouquet
This world would be tiresome—we'd all get the blues—
If all the folks in it held jes' the same views.
So finish your work; show the best of your skill
Some folks they won't like it, but other folks will.
If you're leading a Bible school—building a fence—
Do the most that you can with your own common sense.
One small word of praise in this journey of tears
Outweighs in the balance 'gainst cartloads of sneers.
The plants that we're passing as commonplace weeds
Oft prove to be jes' what some sufferer needs.
So keep on a-goin'; don't stay standin' still;
Some folks they won't like it, but other folks will.—Selected.

PICAYUNES

Many a man who goes to work—doesn't.

A boil never develops on a bore where we wish it would.

You will never get up in the world unless you get down to work.

An honest confession very often isn't good for the other fellow's soul.

What a blessing it would prove if we could send some of our empty churches to the heathen.

A collar manufacturer says our necks are getting larger. We certainly do have to stretch them these days.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

JUST JOTTINGS

A bride is led to the altar just as if she couldn't find the way regardless.

Many a man does more kicking with his mouth than a mule does with his two hind feet.

An up-to-date Cincinnati lawyer has on his business card: "Misfit marriages a specialty."

Ambition, like a torrent, carries everything before it, regardless of the wrecks left behind.

While religion may be free, the preacher is apt to have a string or two attached to him somewhere.

Why does the young man try to keep on the right side of his best girl when he knows that her heart is on the left side?

SOUTH WATERFORD

Frank Billings Closed House and Gone to Troy, N. H.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Nelson Visiting in Medford, Mass.—Monroes Spending Thanksgiving in Melrose, Mass., and Mrs. Watson at Haverhill.

Frank Billings has closed his house for the winter. He has gone to Troy, N. H. to be with his sister, Mrs. Minnie Guillow.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Nelson have gone to Medford, Mass., to visit their daughter, Mrs. Ernest Brackett. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson drove them to Portland, where Mrs. Brackett met them, taking them by auto to Medford.

Mrs Sarah Hamlin is gaining from her fall.

The Institute of Religious Education at North Waterford has had a fine week of study and instruction. Over thirty were in attendance, several went from here but only two were regular in attendance and took the examinations, Tues. night; it was a struggle for the people to get there, for the traveling was very bad, yet there were nine from this part of the parish on hand.

Dorothy Holden and Mildred Haynes attended "The Mothers' and Daughters' Banquet" at Harrison on Wednesday night.

Whooping cough is again in town Floyd Thompson's children both have it. The baby is real sick. Carl Hamlin's children are just beginning to cough. It is rather a bad time of year to have it.

Mrs. Wyman Kimball has a baby girl born two weeks ago. Mrs. Kimball was Charlotte Kingman.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodwin of Hallowell and Mrs. Minnie Gordon and family of Mechanic Falls, were Sunday visitors at W. C. Goodwin's.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Monroe and little Robert of Melrose, Mass. were visitors at his mother's, Mrs. A. A. Monroe's. Mrs Monroe and daughter Ethel, returned to Melrose with them on Sunday for Thanksgiving and a two weeks' visit.

Frank Willard has been visiting in town for some time

Mrs. Millie Clark and Ethel Monroe attended the School of Religious Education at North Waterford. They went with Mr. A. C. Townsend.

Mrs. Monroe has been trying hard to finish work on the church grounds. W. W. Abbott's team and men with Pearl Bradbury made it possible to go as far as they have. It would have been wholly finished but for the heavy rains Much credit is due men who came to the rescue.

Dr. Harry Watson of Haverhill, Mass. came on Friday. His daughter, Ruth, and one of her teachers came to Portland, going to Auburn for the week-end. Dr. Watson is to take his mother, Mrs. M. Etta Watson to Haverhill for Thanksgiving and Mrs. Ella Roberts is to go as far as Portland with them where she will spend the holiday with a niece.

Rupert Greenleaf and wife of Brockton, Mass., have been guests at the Yorkes.'

Jennie Haynes was in town on Saturday to attend the Grange Anniversary.

The Grange Anniversary came on Saturday. Meeting in the forenoon, with a fine dinner at noon. Afternoon was the literary program. The children furnished a good part of the program very creditably Some fine remarks came from Mr. Wentworth and L. E. McIntire. In the evening a dance was enjoyed by all. Andrew's Orchestra furnished music which ended a very happy day. W. K. Hamlin was the only Charter member present. Robbie Plummer is the other Charter member living. He was in such poor health, he was unable to attend. The second time he has missed attending in all these years. He was greatly missed.

Marion Hamlin is gaining but as yet as yet cannot sit up

WATERFORD

There will be Thanksgiving services at the church, Thanksgiving morning at 10 a. m. At this service the new organ will be dedicated. This organ is a gift of Dr. and Mrs. Homer Gage of Worcester, Mass., in memory of their son, Homer Gage, Jr., a great grandson of Dr. Leander Gage of Waterford, who was one of the members of the building committee, when the church was built. After the service there will be short addresses by Rev. W. I. Bull, Rev. Wentworth and Rev. Townsend of the Oxford County United Parish. Mrs. W. W. Fillebrown will preside at the organ during the services.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Townsend have received word of the illness of their son, Newell, of typhoid fever. Newell is at Midland City, in the southern part of Alabama, where he has been since July.

The new church organ arrived on Monday and was placed in the church by the janitor, Dennis Gardner, assisted by several of the men around the village. The organ is a gift from Dr. and Mrs. Homer Gage, of Worcester, Mass., and is a beautiful instrument; it will be heard for the first time at the Thanksgiving Day services.

Charles Lockwood is in town for a month or six weeks and is boarding at Dr Hubbard's.

Christmas Seals

Sale Now On for the Little Health Seals

Beginning on Thanksgiving Day in every city, town and hamlet in Maine and throughout the United States the 1926 edition of the Christmas Health Seals will go on sale. The seals this year are of a most unusual and attractive design. They bear the picture of the Three Minstrels gayly stumming Christmas Carols. The numeral "1926" appears at the top of the seal and the greeting, "Merry Christmas" appears as a legend below the three minstrels.

This is the twentieth annual sale of these cheery little Christmas stickers and each year the design is changed so that the health seals always present a fresh and bright appearance. As usual the seals are on sale at one cent each, and as usual thousands of Maine men and women and millions of men and women throughout the nation will use these special seals on the reverse side of their December mail and Christmas packages. Last year nearly five hundred million of the seals were sold in the United States. The seals will be "chaperoned" again this year by their big brothers the "Health Bonds" in denominations ranging from Five Dollars and up for the use of the more generous givers.

Funds from the sale of the Health Seals and Health Bonds will be used—as always—in the fight against preventable disease and in the protection of human lives against tuberculosis. Ninety per cent of the returns from the sale in Maine will remain in Maine for this work. It is reported from the office of the Maine Public Health Association, which has the responsibility of organizing for the sale in Maine, that nearly 3,000 of the leading public spirited men and women in all sections of Maine have volunteered for service in the campaign this year. These workers include club women and society leaders, grangers and farmers' wives, ministers, business men, professional men, school teachers and men and women from nearly every other walk in life. Funds from the sale of these seals year after year in Maine have been used to such good advantage in health work that other states have begun to study Maine's methods in promoting public health and in fighting the causes of preventable sickness.

Fortune in Leaf Mold

Buyer of Small Farm Found Wealth in Soil Good for Fertilizer

This article is from the Boston Transcript. The Advertiser reprints it in the hope that similar finds can be made in this part of Maine.

There was a carpenter in Cambridge who decided that he wanted a farm. He wanted it as he says, to take his wife and daughter there in summer. The notion became so strong in him that he set forth in winter to find the place. It was a funny time to look for a farm, he was told. He said he had a system; he would look for a place that seemed prosperous; that would mean that people had thought it worth while to live there and take care of their property. He took a train for Manchester, N. H.

The carpenter is Mr. H. C. Grant of Cambridge. He descended from his train at Manchester. He asked a station agent where best to seek a farm. The agent suggested it was a funny to look for a farm in January. That, said Mr. Grant, is what I have been told. The agent directed him to a place some miles distant. There Mr. Grant took a place of abode. He hired an old man with a gray horse and a gray whisker and set out to see the countryside. He looked at a score of farms and stayed there four days. At the end of that time the old man inquired of him what he thought of what he had seen. "I wouldn't give a nickel for any of them," retorted Mr. Grant.

He packed up his things to leave. As he was going, the woman in whose house he had roomed said to him that she knew of a place in Kingston, N. H. She told him how to find it. It was a farm on the State road; it was near the Massachusetts line. Mr. Grant, having looked at twenty farms, said he would look at another. He went to Kingston. When he arrived there he found the owner of the farm that had been recommended to him; the owner was a woman, a nurse, a carrier of the mail. She was a strong woman, a character in the community. She was about to leave the region for a distant place. She did not live on the farm she had for sale; it was closed; it was not in perfect repair. She would be willing to sell it. It had been a farm for a hundred years perhaps. The house might be that old. A white farmhouse of six rooms, and a barn. The farm was seventeen and six-tenths acres. It was covered like all the landscape, with snow.

The Part That Was No Good

From what investigation he was able to make, Mr. Grant decided, and so he told the lady, that one piece of ground was no good. It was wooded and he was not looking for woods. This piece was about three acres. "Oh," said the owner, "You've got enough land without that." Mr. Grant must have agreed with her. He offered her a hundred dollars to bind the bargain. The total price for the farm was $2700 and the farm passed into his hands.

But Mr. Grant was busy as a carpenter. This was two years ago last January. He had a farm, but no time It was only a farm anyway, and he was not a farmer. He let it lie a year. When he went to New Hampshire it was to look after his early apples. His wife spoke to him before he went about some dirt for the house plants in Cambridge. She wanted him to fetch some home. He attended to the apples first; then he took a spade and dug some dirt. It looked like unusual dirt to him, but he took it home. They planted the plants in it. The plants came up with more than expected celerity. They climbed faster and more luxuriantly than plants had been seen to climb before. Mr. Grant took notice.

In time, having read something about leaf mold, he decided that this was leaf mold. Now leaf mold is a curious substance. It is formed of partially decomposed leaves and florists, as W. E. Lenk of Belmont has since exhibited, have been in the habit of making it for themselves by the process of gathering leaves in a pit or other enclosure and allowing them to rot. Three years is the time required to bring them to suitable condition for use as a stimulant for plant growing. This leaf mold on the farm was different, however. It was not only more than three years old, but had probably started to gather [illegible] the time King Tut was a baby. It had accumulated until it occupied three acres of the farm. It occupied the area which Mr. Grant had thought no good for his purposes as a farmer.

The deposit was wide and deep. The possibilities of farming took on a different aspect. Mr. Grant began to inquire into the future. He sold some leaf mold; he sold some to Mr. Lenk in Belmont. Mr. Lenk raises roses and gardenias, the latter with especial enthusiasm and in great numbers. The inquiries reached Washington and Amherst. Mr. Lenk expended three days at Amherst with Mr. Haskins, the chemist of the Massachusetts agricultural experiment station. It was ascertained that of the few known deposits of leaf mold in the world this, in New Hampshire, was probably the greatest. The farm had been a catch basin for leaves for centuries. The trees were hardwood trees, maples and oak. Their leaves, blown by the winds, caught by the contour of the land, had collected, decayed, but had been preserved by mineral in the water from becoming peat. The place might almost as well have been filled with gold. It had cost Grant $2700 and was worth a fortune. The curious thing was that half a dozen families had occupied the farm in the last twenty years and no one could say how many in the last century and nobody had ever turned a foot of the stuff before. They had worked and lived and died there and struggled for a living while in the woods the forces of nature had prepared a substance that was worth more money than all their farming. From 200,000 to 700,000 tons the estimates of the leaf mold run. It is selling at twenty-five dollars a ton.

Analyzing the Treasure

While Grant was planting onions and carrots and roses in leaf mold to see what it would do, Lenk was applying the the tests of the scientific florist to it in Belmont. Grant had the farm, Lenk knew the demand and the way to market. Grant gathered workmen and began to dig the stuff out of the ground. Where he dug water came in, the mineral water that had preserved it. The leaf mold is a beautiful substance, tobacco brown, clean to the hands, capable of being taken apart like the leaves of a book. The process of preparing it for market is to grind it in a machine powered by a gasoline engine, a sort of glorified meat grinder. Six men have been at work on the farm all summer, digging and grinding and bagging the mold. At first it became known by word of mouth; afterward by more formal advertising. Professor Haskins had analyzed it; his analysis is dated June 24, 1926. He found in it organic and volatile matter 97.70 per cent, ash or mineral matter 2.30 per cent. The latter classification was subdivided as follows: phosphoric acid, .051; potassium oxide, .072; nitrogen, 1.494; iron and aluminum oxides, .230; calcium oxide, .123; insoluble matter, 1.361. The principal value was the large content of organic matter, which means a high capacity for holding moisture and soluble plant food in the surface soil with which the leaf mold might be mixed or composted.

This article is from the Boston Transcript. The Advertiser reprints it in the hope that similar finds can be made in this part of Maine.

There was a carpenter in Cambridge who decided that he wanted a farm. He wanted it as he says, to take his wife and daughter there in summer. The notion became so strong in him that he set forth in winter to find the place. It was a funny time to look for a farm, he was told. She was about to leave the region for a larger place. She did not live on the farm she had for sale; it was closed: it was not in perfect repair. She would be willing to sell it. It had been a farm for hundred years perhaps. The house might be that old. A white farmhouse of six rooms, and a barn. The farm was seventeen and six-tenths acres. The News Spread

Here and there people began to hear about the leaf mold. The information passed by word of mouth. It began to pass, soon afterward, by formal printed advertising Mr Lenk was trying it on his greenhouses; he was growing gardenias, most sensitive of plants, in it He mixed it proportionately, 25 per cent of leaf mold with his soil. He tried it in less quantities; he tried a little of it pure Now, theoretically, it ought not to be used pure because in that state it is not a balanced ration for plant life, but the gardenias that Mr. Lenk has grown in pure leaf mold have come up to startling size and beauty. Thus the stuff has been take up by men whose names comprise the bluebook of flower growing. In a partial list of the florists, nurserymen and private gardeners using this leaf mold there are fifty names from Massachusetts, including some that are known all over the world. Orders have come from as far off as Texas. Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Maine, New Hampshire and Connecticut are represented in the list. Mr. Lenk and Mr. Grant have a business agreement.

Meantime not all the countryside of Kingston is pleased. "What do you know about leaf mold—you, a carpenter?" a neighbor inquired of Mr. Grant. He replied that when he read, he read something worth reading. He is a man of medium height, solidly built. His manner is quiet, unassuming. He sees life with a tinge of humor. He exhibits the onions he planted in leaf mold on March 17; they are a fine exhibit. He shows some roses, growing outdoors in a sandy soil in which they would never have stood a chance without the help of leaf mold. He says he has taken out between two and three hundred tons so far. There is still some timber standing on the farm and beneath it is more leaf mold. Where other timber has been cut, new growth is already springing up. The mold is in the natural stage between the raw leaf state and decomposition when it has greatest potentiality. It differs, says Mr. Lenk, from European products, which absorb too much moisture. It makes soils friable, a necessity for the growth of many plants. It is not peat. It checks excessive evaporation from the soil and thus prevents tiny roots from drying. It is free from fungus and weed seeds, preventing the formation of top crusts, keeps down weeds and stops capillary attraction

Grant has improved the old farmhouse, has applied to it his experience as a carpenter. It has electric lights now, it is comfortable and attractive. Tall trees grow in the dooryard, apple and maple and ash. Behind the barn the men are digging, cutting blocks of precious humus cleanly from the ground. The blocks go into the shredder, which will take all that four men can feed it. It comes out ground up, and is packed in burlap bags, 110 pounds to a bag. Thence it goes to various parts of the country. The industry is in it's very beginnings, the deposit will last for many years. "What," Mr. Grant was asked, "would you sell your farm for now?" He almost chuckled and said that it would have to be covered with silver dollars. He is through with being a carpenter, except for his own household needs. The previous owner of the farm has gone away, perhaps has never heard of the mine upon the farm. But there it is, tramped over by scores of persons for a hundred years, and just now yielding its age-old deposit.

NORTH WATERFORD

Ernest Grover at Upton, Hunting—Auto Party Enjoy Trip—Mrs. Nason of Bridgton Working at Perkins'—Josephine Jordan Returned from Hospital.

Mrs. Esther Marston returned to her home at Lovell, Tuesday.

There was a good attendance at the School of Education held here 5 evenings of last week as they came from other towns here.

Annie Hazelton returned Tuesday after attending National Grange, Portland, several days and was a candidate for the seventh degree: her daughter met her there and she returned to Lewiston with her and made a few days' stay and also stopped over night at Mechanic Falls as a guest of Mrs. M. T. Abbott. While in Portland she spent a very pleasant evening and had tea with a friend, Mrs. Grace Nelson. She did shopping for her store while away, for Christmas.

Jesse Littlefield and family went to Bridgton, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Libby went to Minot Saturday afternoon and took a lot of dressed chickens he had sold.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Hazelton went to Gorham, N. H. and Stow, Sunday. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morey and called on Mrs. Merton Young who went with them. They also took Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Farmer who were guests with them at both places. They all had a delightful trip and fine time.

Mr. and Mrs Charles Cummings spent the week end at her father's, Leslie Hobson's.

Mr and Mrs. Martin Miller from Auburn, were guests of her parents from Friday until Sunday.

Ernest Grover has been spending several days at Upton on a hunting trip. Mr. Kittredge took his place as night watchman at the spool mill.

It is hoped that all members of Waterford Grange No. 479 will be present Friday night as they have 5 candidates that the 3rd and 4th degrees are to be conferred on.

Fred Hazelton went to Bridgton Tuesday and had a dentist remove a root of a tooth that had been left over a year since his teeth were extracted. It was a very painful job and he was sick after, so was unable to attend his work at the spool mill.

Mrs Hannah Hazelton, who has been stopping with Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Hazelton returned to her daughter's, Mrs. L. J. Andrews, where she makes her home.

Roy Lord and wife are in South Paris with Mr. Lord's sister, Mrs. June Penfold. They went to South Paris, Monday. A son was born to them, Tuesday, who only lived a few hours. Interment was at North Waterford. Mrs. Lord is seriously ill. A trained nurse is in attendance.

Roy Lord visited his mother Mrs. E. K. Shedd, Monday. He is suffering with a severe cold.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Shedd called on Mr. Shedd's uncle, James Kimball, one day last week.

Mrs. Flora Nason of Bridgton is working for W. S. Perkins. She is a very efficient housekeeper. Mrs. Roland Littlefield called on her Sunday evening.

Callers at Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Shedd's this week were Mrs. Merton Hobson and daughter, Mrs. Nelson Rolfe and son, Ruth Morse, Mrs. Roland Littlefield and son, Roy Lord, Hiram French, Elmo McGray, Stanwood Nelson and Carrie Andrews.

Fred Barton of Sweden was on the road last week with his Yankee Notions. He took dinner at E. K. Shedd's.

Josephine Jordan, who has been at the C. M. G. Hospital in Lewiston for two weeks, returned home, Sunday.

Henry Durgin caught two fine foxes last week.

Serve roast lamb or lamb chops piping hot, or on a hot platter, and then on hot plates. The fat of lamb has the peculiarity of sticking to the plate when cool, also to the palate, and roof of the mouth. To most people this is unpleasant and it can be easily avoided by serving the lamb on very hot dishes.

To whom will good days come?—1 Peter 3:10.

LOVELL

Melva Charles Dead—Mrs. Littlefield and Children Visiting Her Parents.

The deer hunters are wishing for snow and it looks as if their wish might be granted.

Melva Charles passed away very suddenly last Tuesday P. M., Nov. 16, with heart trouble. He had been in poor health for some time. He had just got moved and settled in the parsonage in the village a few weeks ago. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge; also belonged to the Christian Church, Lovell. He was a very nice citizen and will be missed in the community. He leaves two sons, Virgil and Ralph, also a granddaughter, Ruth Charles, who lived with him; she and her mother had lived with Mr Charles ever since his wife's death, a few years ago. His age was 73.

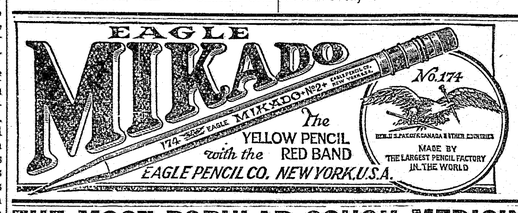

Kath. Bailey came up from Portland to help her mother who has been sick for a few days.

Mrs Nettie Merrill is caring for Mrs. Carl Nevers who has a son born Nov. 13. He has been named Roswell Edgar after his two grandfathers.

Mrs. Ralph Littlefield and children are stopping for a couple of weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Briggs. They are soon to go to New Sharon to live.

The friends of Mrs. C. G. Briggs are glad to hear she is gaining and hope she will soon be home from Maine General Hospital in Portland where she was operated on for appendicitis.

Why is it necessary to do justice?—Isaiah 56:1, 2.

No Need to Cough Night After Night

Balsam Has No Equal for Conquering Hang-On Coughs

After all there is no present day cough syrup that can take the place of this old time proven prescription made from the rarest herbs nature offers for soothing and stopping coughs. This old fashioned herb balsam is for the stubborn hang-on cough that keeps you awake nights, and it is this kind of a cough it quickly conquers. Here's what prominent druggist says about Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam.

"The superiority and excellence of this balsam used for 60 years is entirely explained as follows: If I were to put up a cough remedy as good as Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, with the same well known ingredients, it would take me 6 hours and I'd have to charge an exorbitant price. The public is fortunate that they can obtain it for only 35 cents. No better balsam can be obtained and none more highly recommended for children. Contains no opiates."

It covers the sore infected part like a healing poultice and quickly soothes and conquers the most stubborn cough. First dose instantly relieves. Get rid of your cough. Get a bottle of Adamson's Cough Balsam from your druggist.

"MERRY-GO-ROUND" COSTUMES IN "THE ROSE GIRL"

Rehearsals were started in the Legion Hall, Tuesday evening, in preparation for the elaborate musical comedy, "The Rose Girl," to be presented in the Opera House under the auspices of the Athletic Association, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, December 7 and 8. The proceeds of the play will be turned over to the Playground Park Fund.

Norway's best known and most popular stage stars have volunteered their services for the production and the cast of principal characters and soloists will include Miss Glenys Voter, Miss Evelyn Gilan, Miss Ruth Akers, Mrs. Marguerite Bowser, Miss Hazel Mosher, Donald Partridge, Paul Hosmer, Kenneth Dullea, Kenneth Goodwin, and others. The chorus will number about 75 lavishly costumed singers and dancers, and there will be special stage settings and electrical effect.

The production is being staged under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Philbrook of Framingham, Mass., and will be presented exactly as seen in Boston and other larger cities, under the direction of these producers. Percy Nevers is chairman of the Athletic Association committee, in charge of the presentation.

Horse Takes a Swim Across Charles Pond

Mr. and Mrs. George Rice and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hersey attended the Church Workers' Institute some of the evenings and they wished more could have attended these meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Harrington from Sterling, Mass., spent nearly a week with her sister, Mrs. C. A. Hersey. Mabelle Hersey went back with them, Monday morning, for a few weeks' visit.

Harold Millett has been hauling hay out to Bridgton for Charles Saunders, with Arthur Millett's truck.

The next Circle at the vestry will be December 7.

Burnham Rice had quite an experience Monday, when he led one of Winfield Brown's horses down to Charles Pond, in Lovell, to drink. The horse, with harness on, and with whiffle-tree and a chain went into the water and commenced to swim across the pond, but not finding good footing on the other side, turned in a half circle and came back to where Mr. Rice was standing. Grave fears were felt for the safety of the horse when it was in the water.

Mrs. George Rice went, Monday, to visit her mother, Mrs. Charles Hamlin. She had not seen her since she had spent a week in Portland, attending the National Grange meetings.

Preaching service in vestry at 10:45 and Sunday school at 12. Come one, come all.

ESSEX SIX
a FOUR door
Sedan
now showing for the first time

Answering an insistent demand for a beautiful, well appointed four door, five passenger body on the smooth and nimble Essex chassis, the Sedan is now being shown for the first time.

It has individuality in line, color and fittings. It is unusually comfortable in the seating arrangement. Upholstering is comparable in texture and quality with that used in costliest cars.

No car, regardless of cost, rides any easier. None is more easily handled in traffic. Essex is nimble, quiet and gives unusual gasoline mileage. It has fine car qualities in chassis and body that assure long service.

The cost is but little more than for any four—even less than for some four cylinder closed cars. It is much less than you will pay for any six cylinder Sedan.

Annual Concert

The annual Thanksgiving concert in the Congregational Church, Sunday evening, was a success. Msr. Ida Neal was organist and an inspiring program of sacred music was given.

There were several selections by an orchestra led by Mrs. Grace Dean Robinson, selection by a double quartette composed of Mrs. Edith Wheeler and Mrs. Rose Witham, soprano, Miss Emma West and Miss Dorothy Dean, alto, Morton B. Bolster and C. A. Churchill, tenor, L. W. Titus and Albert Dean, bass. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. B. Tetley, and the response was a violin trio by Mrs. Grace Dean Robinson, Miss Dorothy Dean and Miss Geraldine Bennett. Two selections were given by the Nevin Ladies' Quartette, Miss Ruth Graves, Mrs. Edith Wheeler, Mrs. Esther Tower Anderson and Mrs. tella W. Burnham. A violin solo was played by Miss Marion Haskell and a violin duet by Miss Haskell and Miss Dorothy Dean. There was a vocal duet by Mrs. Witham and Mr. Bolster, and solos by Mr. Bolster, Mrs. Witham, Miss Graves and Mrs. Anderson. The collection amounted to $62.38.

Methodist Church Notes

"A Lost Power" is the subject for next Sunday morning's sermon. There is much power used for various purposes, and lots of power is wasted or lost. If we had back a certain power South Paris would be a safer place to live in. Let us get it back. The vested choir will sing.

A large congregation was present at the morning service, last Sunday morning. The vested choir rendered an anthem, Miss Emma West was the soloist and Alfred Cota gave a violin selection.

Republican Conclave

One hundred and fifty prominent Republicans gathered here Tuesday for a love-feast and meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall. A banquet was served at noon by the Rebekah Lodge, followed by speeches and good fellowship.

Arthur R. Gould of Presque Isle was the principal speaker and in his remarks bearing on the activities of his political opponent, Fulton J. Redman, of Ellsworth, described the Democratic attack as "making wormholes in antique furniture."

"Uncle" John P. Swasey of Canton, 88 years of age, received an ovation. He was dean of the meeting and popular.

Other speakers were Daniel F. Field of Phillips, chairman of the Republican State Committee; Mrs. Eva C. Mason of Dover-Foxcroft, State Committee vice chairman; Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Portland, national committee woman from Maine, and United States Senator Frederick Hale, of Portland.

Mrs. Ada Bilings went to Shelburne, N. H. for a short visit then returned to Bethel for a longer visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ray Crockett.

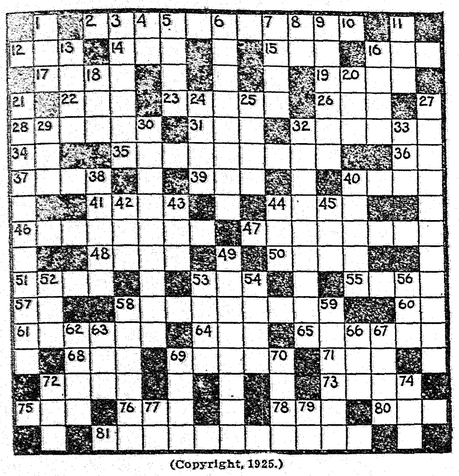

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Penfold, Mrs. Agnes L. Morton and Mrs. Louise J. Briggs went to Portland, Sunday, where a Thanksgiving dinner was served by relatives.

The Idlers, an afternoon club formed for sociability, held the first meeting with Mrs. Doran on Western Avenue. Mrs. Allen entertained at the second meeting and, Friday, Mrs. Clifford on Highland Avenue will be the hostess. Light refreshments are served.

There will be a special meeting of J. L. Chamberlain Camp, Sons of Veterans Auxiliary, Thursday evening, Dec. 2, for general business. There will be no regular meeting on the 25th on account of Thanksgiving.

Schools opened, Monday, for the winter term after a week's vacation. The Thanksgiving recess continues until next Monday morning.

South Paris

Annual Concert

The annual Thanksgiving concert in the Congregational Church, Sunday evening, was a success. Mrs. Ida Neal was organist and an inspiring program of sacred music was given.

There were several selections by an orchestra led by Mrs. Grace Dean Robinson, selection by a double quartette composed of Mrs. Edith Wheeler and Mrs. Rose Witham, soprano, Miss Emma West and Miss Dorothy Dean, alto, Morton B. Bolster and C. A. Churchill, tenor, L. W. Titus and Albert Dean, bass. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. B. Tetley, and the response was a violin trio by Mrs. Grace Dean Robinson, Miss Dorothy Dean and Miss Geraldine Bennett. Two selections were given by the Nevin Ladies' Quartette, Miss Ruth Graves, Mrs. Edith Wheeler, Mrs. Esther Tower Anderson and Mrs. Ralph W. Burnham. A violin solo was played by Miss Marion Haskell and a violin duet by Miss Haskell and Miss Dorothy Dean. There was a vocal duet by Mrs. Witham and Mr. Bolster, and solos by Mr. Bolster, Mrs. Witham, Miss Graves and Mrs. Anderson. The collection amounted to $62.38.

Methodist Church Notes

"A Lost Power" is the subject for next Sunday morning's sermon. There is much power used for various purposes, and lots of power is wasted or lost. If we had back a certain power South Paris would be a safer place to live in. Let us get it back. The vested choir will sing.

A large congregation was present at the morning service, last Sunday morning. The vested choir rendered an anthem, Miss Emma West was the soloist and Alfred Cota gave a violin selection.

Republican Conclave

One hundred and fifty prominent Republicans gathered here Tuesday for a love-feast and meeting in Odd Fellows' Hall. A banquet was served at noon by the Rebekah Lodge, followed by speeches and good fellowship.

Arthur R. Gould of Presque Isle was the principal speaker and in his remarks bearing on the activities of his political opponent, Fulton J. Redman, of Ellsworth, described the Democratic attack as "making wormholes in antique furniture."

"Uncle" John P. Swasey of Canton, 88 years of age, received an ovation. He was dean of the meeting and popular.

Other speakers were Daniel F. Field of Phillips, chairman of the Republican State Committee: Mrs. Eva C. Mason of Dover-Foxcroft, State Committee vice chairman: Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Portland, national committee woman from Maine, and United States Senator Frederick Hale, of Portland.

Mrs. Ada Bilings went to Shelburne, N. H. for a short visit then returned to Bethel for a longer visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ray Crockett.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Penfold, Mrs. Agnes L. Morton and Mrs. Louise J. Briggs went to Portland, Sunday, where a Thanksgiving dinner was served by relatives.

The Idlers, an afternoon club formed for sociability, held the first meeting with Mrs. Doran on Western Avenue. Mrs. Allen entertained at the second meeting and, Friday, Mrs. Clifford on Highland Avenue will be the hostess. Light refreshments are served.

There will be a special meeting of J. L. Chamberlain Camp, Sons of Veterans Auxiliary, Thursday evening, Dec. 2, for general business. There will be no regular meeting on the 25th on account of Thanksgiving.

Schools opened, Monday, for the winter term after a week's vacation. The Thanksgiving recess continues until next Monday morning.

There is a movement to re-organize the Boy Scouts and a meeting for all interested will be held, Monday, Nov. 29, at 6. 30 P. M., in Deering Memorial church vestry. W. H. Harriman, former Scout Master, and Rev. H. O. Megert will present plans for the new troup now under consideration.

The new fire alarm system was tested, Tuesday afternoon, and found satisfactory except that the motor is not large enough to operate the siren quickly. A more powerful motor may be installed.

The Women's Hospital Association of the C. M. G. Hospital of Lewiston appreciate the generous gifts recently given the hospital by the people of South Paris and vicinity. The Harvest gifts have been many and are very much appreciated.

Mrs. B. E. Brown of Brown's Camps, Center Lovell, writes that they made the trip from the camps to their winter home in Pasadena, Fla., in 6 1-2 days, over very good roads, arriving Sunday noon, November 14. Found their flowers all in bloom and no signs of the recent hurricane at their place.

"The Rose Girl," Broadway musical comedy, with all-star cast, 75 pretty girls in dazzling costumes, and 1,000 laughs, at the Opera House, Dec. 7 and 8.

NOBLE'S CORNER

Mrs. Upton Entertained Club—Guy Curtis Had Oats Threshed—Clayton White Home from Bates Over Sunday.

The members of the Neighborly Club were entertained by Mrs. Percy Upton this week. A goodly number attended. Light refreshments were served. Those present were Mrs Oscar Cox, Mrs. Wayland Upton, Mrs. Irving Symonds, Miss Maud Bennett and hostess, Mrs. Upton. Mrs. Irving Symonds will entertain next week. We understand that some folks from other neighborhoods think our Club is dying out, but it is not so. We guess that these folks don't stop to think that a few houses in this vicinity are closed for the winter, but the remaining members that are here are very prompt in attending our weekly meetings.

Dr. I. P. Symonds has been inspecting cattle through Vermont recently, for the Maine Dairy Association.

George Greenleaf and Arthur Millett have been threshing oats for Guy Curtis, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Merrill and Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Russell of Norway were Sunday visitors at Percy Upton's.

Clayton White was home from Bates College over the week end.

Mrs. Willard Whiting has been suffering with indigestion for a few days, but is somewhat better at this writing.

HARBOR

Mrs. Sarah Emery of Topsham Visited in Town—Mrs. Bennett and Sons in Livermore.

Mrs. Sarah Emery of Topsham, formerly of this place, was a guest at Frank Pray's. Mrs. Emery has been the guest of Mrs. Erlon Bennett for some weeks.

Roy Gorden is staying at Leslie McKeen's and hunting.

Mrs. Erlon Bennett and two sons are spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, at Livermore.

Mrs. Percy Jones and children have visited at John Gray's before leaving for the south.

The graveyard association have worked at the yard two days the past week and the ladies have served a hot dinner for them.

The Ladies' Aid met Friday afternoon at the vestry and finished up the work started. They plan to hold their annual Christmas sale on December 3.

Beatrice Bemis was home from the Academy over the week end.

Mrs. Ella McAllister and grandson, George Smith, Miss Arabell Heald and Moses Sargent of West Lovell were guests at Wesley Heald's, Sunday.

EAST OTISFIELD

Chesley and Bertrand Rugg visited their father, Henry Rugg, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Hattie Greenleaf and son, Ernest L. Greenleaf, went to the C. M. G. Hospital, Monday afternoon, to see her brother, Henry O. Holden, who is very sick. Mrs. William Stone, also a patient there, is getting along as comfortable as could be expected, from her serious operation.

Henry Rugg has exchanged his touring car for a sedan.

P. C. Greenleaf and Everett Bean went to Mechanic Falls, last Tuesday.

M. Losier, who has been at work at West Paris for several weeks past, has been at home the past two weeks.

WEST STONEHAM

Wesley Adams Captures Bob Cat—Adams Camps Closed for Winter.

Mrs. John Adams is suffering with an abscess in her throat.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barker and sons, Edmund and Chester, also Mrs. Winfield McAlister and son, called on Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Andrews, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Warren, Josie and Alice Adams motored to West Paris, Friday.

Gertrude Adams is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, after having been at work for Mrs. K. H. Fontaine for a while.

Wesley Adams, veteran hunter and trapper, and until recently a lifelong resident of this place, got a bob cat recently. Mr. Adams is quite a smart man to be in the woods after wild animals at his age.

The Maxfields were at Adams Camps over the week end, making all snug and safe for winter weather.

John D. Grover lost a nice heifer recenty.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tucker of East Stoneham are in camp near "Slide Inn," while Mr. Tucker is cutting birch for W. A. Hersey.

I. A. Andrews called at John D. Grover's, Saturday morning. It is Mr. Andrews' longest walk since he returned from Portland in October. We are very glad to see him about again after his long illness.

"The Rose Girl," Broadway musical comedy, with all-star cast, 75 pretty girls in dazzling costumes, and 1,000 laughs, at the Opera House, Dec. 7 and 8.

TRUST IN THE LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.—Prov. 3:5, 6.

BETHEL—KIMBALL HILL

Fred Haines and Almon Coolidge were at home over the week end.

Iva Harrington is at home from Norway.

James Haines is working for Urban Bartlett.

Mrs. M. J. Maconnell is quite feeble.

Joel Merrill is working at Locke Mills and drives back and forth night and morning with his team.

Sunday guests at G. L. Haines', Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Haines, Mr. and and Mrs. R. E. Haines and son, Murrey, of West Paris, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Howe of Hanover, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Swan and sons, Ernest, Lee and Robert, of Bethel, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Noyes.

"The Rose Girl," Broadway musical comedy, with all-star cast, 75 pretty girls in dazzling costumes, and 1,000 laughs, at the Opera House, Dec. 7 and 8.

HIGH SCHOOL ANNUAL FAIR

The annual bazaar, supper and entertainment produced by the students of Norway High School at Grange Hall, Friday afternoon and evening, was a social and financial success.

The bazaar opened for business in mid-afternoon with the stock in trade displayed in booths attractively decorated with many colors. A center table in blue and white carried a large variety of fancy work, over which the Misses Katherine Drake, Clara Adkins and Grace McAllister presided. Green and pink were the attractive colors at the apron booth, where Celestine Judkins, Ina Yates and Mildred Huff were salesgirls for a large patronage. Nice homemade candy was sold by Marion Bennett, Melverda Robbins and Elizabeth Sanborn, where green and white predominated in the decoration.

The art booth was attractive in scarlet and gray. This stock was in charge of Bertha Towne, Hilda Stineford and Marjorie Twitchell. A booth in black and brown breathed mystery where the inquisitive ones traded dimes to know a few unseen things. This place was in charge of Phoebe Cobb, Thurlev Tucker and Margaret Cummings.

All sorts of garden vegetables, fruit and a plump "turk" were at the Agricultural booth where Burton Barker, Alpheus Jackson and Donald Green talked up the good points of the produce.

Refreshments were served by Frances Rich, Lucienne Frechette and Kathryn Richardson. The school pillow and other articles were sold by Madelyn Burgess, Cora Smith and Constance Smith.

All tables in the dining hall were filled during the supper hour, the supper chairman, Mary Favor and Catherine Longley, being assisted by pupils and their mothers.

The one-act play, "Fa's New Housekeeper," in the upper halll called out a capacity house. Every available chair in the building was confiscated for the event. The farce was made for laughing purposes and the cast to put it across included Roger Gates, Paul Brown, Kenneth Goodwin, Hilda Stineford and Evelyn Saleeby.

Music by the high school orchestra, songs and specialty dance by members of the Girls' Glee Club were given before the opening curtain.

Winners of the various articles awarded are: turkey to Mrs. Elizabeth Getchell; school pillow to Edward H. Brown; silver bread tray to Clara Hall; scarf to Miss Fay Seaborn; bracelet to Mrs. Harriett C. Brown; bath room set to Miss Rowena Verne; necklace to Mrs. Harmon and electric toaster to Mrs. Florence Smith. The articles were contributed from several business firms.

The school orchestra furnished music for dancing that closed the successful fair.

RECEIVED CONGRATULATIONS BY CABLE FROM LONDON

On November 19, Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Gould received a cablegram from Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Sikkenga of London, England, congratulating them on their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

A meeting of the Sovereign College of Allied Masonic and Christian Degrees of America located at Norway, Maine, will be held at Masonic Hall, Friday evening, at 8 p. m. Samuel B. Furbish of Brunswick, Sovereign Grand Master, will be present and all who are eligible are requested to attend.

Frank P. Stone is having his annual vacation and on a ten days trip to Indianapolis, Ind., where he will spend Thanksgiving and the following days with his son, Carl Stone, and family. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Beatrice Stone, who will remain for a longer visit, and call on Mrs. Christine Leavitt Crockett at New Haven, Conn., on her way home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O. Perry will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary this Friday, November 26, at their son's residence, 15 Crescent St.

Rounding Up Stolen Automobiles

Officers Cause Sensation in Locating Stolen Autos

A real sensation was created here, Thursday afternoo nwhen Chief Arthur H. Field and twelve Highway police officers motored into town for the purpose of rounding up automobiles alleged to have been stolen in Massachusetts and elsewhere, and sold to unsuspecting victims in Oxford County.

The visit was not exactly a thunder clap from a clear sky, for inspectors had worked here early in the week, but the round-up on a large scale, conducted with neatness and dispatch was nevertheless a surprise and attracted a crowd.

Automobiles replevined were taken to the garage of Ripley & Fletcher Co., at South Paris, where expert mechanics of the Automobile Detective Association will give a thorough inspection. Already a number of cars have been positively identified as stolen in Massachusetts. The engine numbers, it is said, were changed by a secret process so only an expert might discover the fraud.

The round-up has included Paris, Oxford, Mechanic Falls and Poland, it is understood practically every town in Oxford County, where the salesman operated will be combed. It is understood the officers have experienced very little trouble in their quest, most of the owners appearing willing to give up the goods without legal action.

As the esarch is extended, the list will grow, for it is believed at least fifty automobiles were traded in this section.

The following have been reported on the list:

A. B. Grover, Welchville.
Elmore E. Edmunds, South Paris.
George Hollis, South Paris.
Harold Millett, South Paris.
Edward L. Bean, South Paris.
Christine Leavitt Crockett, Norway.
Donald Andrews, Norway.
E. J. Stone, Mechanic Falls.
Ralph Mains, Mechanic Falls.
Clarence Meserve, Mechanic Falls.
Ralph D. Archampaugh, Poland Corner.
P. E. Talbot, Welchville.

Cars all found in Oxford, were given up by Lawrence Frye, George Waite, Lewis McAllister and Thomas Heslop.

J. A. Baldwin of Boston, alleged leader of a gang doing an interstate business, was arrested in Portland and held in the sum of $10,000. Frank Coffin of Berlin, N. H., and Percy Culbert of Welchville have handled the autos which Baldwin, they say, represented to them as "repossessed" cars. Baldwin told a plausible story and they thought the business was perfectly legitimate. It is reported Coffin told the officers that he has disposed of nearly one hundred cars in this section.

Percy Culbert, the garage owner, who is said to be repair man for Coffin, is cooperating in every way with the State Police in their efforts to run down stolen cars.

Sketches of Local People

ELMER HUSSEY

Elmer Hussey is a young man who is making his way in the world and achieving success. After graduating from college, he began teaching and is now superintendent of schools at Wickford, R. I.

He was born at Fuller's Corner, North Norway—his parents being Horace E. and Aurilla Isabelle (French) Hussey. His father is a giant in stature and much the largest man in Norway. The young man is of fair proportions and of pleasing address. His grandfather Hussey was a gallant soldier in the Civil War.

His maternal grandfather was John Adams French, the founder of the Boston Herald. Mr. French was a self-made man, a natural orator and a good citizen. He was one of Norway's smartest and brightest productions and a fine specimen of the old time gentleman.

Mr. Hussey has good blood in him and a fine career is open before him.

—C. F. Whitman.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICES

The largest congregation in years for a Thanksgiving service, assembled at the Congregational Church, Sunday evening, for a union of the Methodist, Universalist, Baptist, Episcopal and Congregational in Thanksgiving worship. Additional seats were provided to accommodate the overflow. Musical features were an anthem by the vested choir; violin solo by Dr. C. F. Pratt, with Ruth Cummings Huston accompanist, and a selection by the Nevin Ladies' Quartette of South Paris. The offering for work in the Near East was generous.

It is estimated between three and four inches of rain fell, Friday. The storm was a regular northeaster that soaked the earth and caused streams to overflow their banks. Bird, or Tannery Brook, spread over sections of the meadow east of the depot, and the Little Androscoggin went wild over low land. Highways were damaged and turned into mire.

Rev. Olin B. Tracy will take a prominent part in the exercises at Portland, Friday evening, when Mrs. Hilda L. Ives is ordained church assistant at Willison.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wright of New York were at Wrightstone Manor Farms for the week end. They entertained Mrs. Bradbury F. Cushing of Boston, formerly of Poland Spring, and enjoyed numerous side trips, including a visit to Mellie Dunham's farm house. The Wrights returned to New York for Thanksgiving, but plan to spend Christmas at the farm.

Mark Smith spent Sunday in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hobson entertained his sisters and family from Saco, for the week end.

Farley True's orchestra of six pieces will play at Mechanic Falls, Wednesday Nov. 24; Hobson's Pavilion for Thanksgiving Ball, Thursday, Nov. 25; Harrison Grange, Friday, Nov. 26th, and regular Saturday night dance at Hobson's Pavilion, and at the Mothers' Club, Dec. 2.

Rev. E. H. Carritt, pastor of Oxford Federated Church, was in town on business, Monday.

How about evening school? The first meeting for registration will be held at the high school building, Nov. 29, at 8 o'clock. If a sufficient number of pupils are present, the school will be held, otherwise the plan will not be carried out. Nine courses are offered, including Americanization, Commercial, Automobile, Millinery, Agricultural, Cooking, Mathematics, Sewing, Lapidary.

Ed. E. Allen, East Stoneham: "Yes, it's a fine day, summer like and roads not too bad. Last year, Dec. 19, I picked up enough apples under the tree to make a barrel of cider. The apples had been frozen and thawed out. Maybe it will be the same this year."

OPEN AND GLOBULAR STAR CLUSTERS

After the redish planet Jupiter which hangs high in the south at early evening, the red planet Mars trails in his ascendency in the east. Mars is followed in about two weeks by the most interesting naked eye open cluster, the Pleiades and then in another few weeks rises another red star, Aldeberan, associated with an A shaped open cluster, the Hyades. These are the vanguard which ushers up Orion with his bright three belt stars who appears in December-January. The appearance of these objects is repeated in their order annually in their seasons.

All of the few hundred star clusters may be placed in two classes, open and globular clusters and of all the star clusters, only 90 or 100 are globular.

The average speed in motion of the star clusters is about 100 miles per second. The open cluster Hyades lie at a distance of 140 light years. All the open clusters are moving together like flocks of birds, while the globular clusters are so remote, their motion appears imperceptible although moving rapidly. No open clusters have yet been found outside that circular star belt, called the Milkyway or Galaxy, but hundreds are found within it. The constellations Ursa Major and Orion are situated in regions widely apart, although they are of the same type and have the same motion in space and both constellations evidently belong to the same local group, for they are quite as near as open clusters range.

Betelgeuse the star in the right shoulder of Orion is some 150 light years away. Of the open clusters that are interesting, are the double cluster in Perseus, the "beehive" cluster. Praesepe in Cancer which visually is a hazy star but with small magnification, 3 or 4 pairs of bright with fainter ones are revealed.

The globular clusters are different systems, each contains tens of thousands perhaps hundreds of thousands of stars and of these examined, about one third are of a standard size between 11th and 13th magnitude (6th mag. is the limit for unaided eye) and two thirds of a fainter standard size 15. to 16.5 magnitude. The condensations increase rapidly toward the center.

The two nearest globular clusters are Omega Centaurius and 47 Tucanae in the southern heavens and near the lesser Magellanic Cloud, about 20,000 light years away, while the apparent largest cluster in Hercules (messier 13) barely visible to the naked eye, is 36,000 light years distant. Of other globular clusters, more than 100,000 light years separates them from us. Their diameter is 3 or 4 hundred light years, about the distance from the earth to the Pleiades. The equatorial plane of the globula cluster nearest the galatic plane (messier 22) appears to be parallel with the plane of the galaxy.

Apparently because of rotation the globulars are slightly flattened at the poles which seem to be characteristic of all celestial phenomenon. The globular clusters appear to be distributed at the limits or slightly within the bounds of the galatic plane and while uncertainties are admitted, their positions offer a clue to the form of the galaxy or milkyway, indicating that the distance along the central plane is the order of 300,000 light years, while the open clusters are within these borders. Nearly a dozen moving clusters are recognized within 700 light years of the sun. A light year is some less than 6 trillions of miles.

By Charles Jenness of the Rochester, N. H. C

There were always trout for the catching at Sourdnahunk lake. They were there, plenty of them. But they legally might only be taken with a fly. To me it would seem strange indeed to return from a fishing trip without having once used an angle worm.

"Aren't there any places about here where one may fish with a worm?" I inquired. "Oh, yes, most assuredly there were such waters. The nearest place was "Dwelley." "And what," said I, "is Dwelley?" Oh, that was another silent little wilderness pond, only to be reached by a three and a half-mile walk through the woods that lay back of Phoenix Camps. Why, of course, we must walk to Dwelley. Only a seven-mile hike. Elizabeth was enthusiastic. Yes, indeed, she could walk that distance. For had not Mrs Twitchell, some years her senior, walked it last year, and was she not all ready, waiting and longing to try it again? By dint of hard work with an old, broken shovel, and by patient search in the black, soggy earth out back of the log house that served as the camp woodshed, five small worms were ultimately located and securely boxed, and the trio of trampers was off for Dwelley.

A grassy hill sloped gently back from the camps, beyond which was the garden, carefully fenced to keep out the deer and moose From this garden came the fresh vegetables that so often appeared on the dining room table. At the far end of the garden some pole bars appeared to open the way into the unbroken woods. But not for long. A few hundred feet distant we suddenly walked into another clearing, where there were log houses, a big one to shelter the horses and another one for the private apartments of John Jones, the general superintendent of the buckboard, keeper of the live stock, and general all-round utility man.

Here, John had a log house "all by his lonesome." He partook of his meals at the camp kitchen, but he slept up here in his cabin near the stable. On one side of this clearing in the woods was a small lumber mill, with circular and crosscut saws, and a planer. I looked for the smokestack. There was none. Closer investigation revealed the motive power—a gasoline tractor. This furnished power to the whole mill, one machine, however, at a time. Timber had but recently been cut to be used in the erection of several new camps. It seemed passing strange to find this small lumber-making outfit set down there in the Maine woods, 65 miles from the nearest railroad station. But why not? The trees were growing all about us, camps were needed, and, most assuredly, the efficient way to do all the work on the spot. Here, too, were a quantity of big, white birch logs From these we secured a goodly supply of birch to be used in starting the always comforting morning fire at our little cabin.

A boy who worked about the camps, daily making the rounds and delivering a generous supply of fuel from a wheel barrow, gladly would have daily performed this necessary task for us, but I started each day's program fully a good half hour before the boy made his regular morning visitation at the cabins, so much preferred to build my own cabin fire. It was good sport to arrange the birch bark, the small bits of driftwood that were picked up in front of the camp, and the larger wood on top, then light it and jump back into bed and listen to its comforting roar. Soon the cabin would be very warm.

Leaving the sawmill opening in the forest, we immediately found ourselves traveling in a most delightful path, an old wood road, that led to Dwelley. Here, surely, thought I, one should see something in the way of the woodland wild life that we felt sure must be all about us. Our road took us through cut-over land. Fallen trees, thick underbrush, myriads of pretty little firs and spruces, an abundance of hardy raspberry bushes were on either side. But not a sign of any wild animal, not a movement, despite the fact that we all but stained our eyes in looking—looked until my eyes actually tired in the fruitless search for a deer, or even a porcupine. Once we did see a hawk, perched high up in the air on top of an old dead spruce. But he moved not; he gave no indication of being aware of our presence.

On this delightful wilderness journey time passed all too rapidly. Big, red, dead ripe raspberries, the last of the season, were tenaciously hanging to the bushes for a few more cool fall days, waiting to be devoured by man or beast. Here and there a maple flamed its vivid autumnal foliage against a background of evergreens. Now we came to a little clearing beside the road, a space now overgrown with raspberry bushes and little fir trees. "Here," said Mrs Twitchell, "is where one of the men at the camp shot a deer last fall." The trail, leading up hill and down, now passed a good-sized spring, almost in the road. From it a little stream of water flowed, was joined by other springlets, until the road became wet and muddy, now changing almost to a brook. But a detour took us dry shod around through the forest until we found the road once more passable for humans. But what are these enormous tracks? Far too large are they for a deer. At first we thought they were left by a passing moose, who had, maybe, stopped at the spring for a refreshing drink of the purest of water. But we were badly mistaken. Our new-found tracks were but evidence that the cows from our own camp, had, like ourselves, traveled that same woodland way, en route to Dwelley, where, we later discovered, there was a bit of clearing. Here the hungry animals could at least find a little green grass. But think of taking a seven-mile hike in order to get the cows home in time for the evening's daily milking. When a small boy, living on a farm, one of my daily duties was, each night, to go after the cows. I know what it means. Later we learned that the cows were quite as likely to travel two miles through the woods in another direction to more grazing land located near the dam. John Jones, I think, was acting milkman, as well as being lord of the buckboard. Surely, John must lead a busy life, for each day, at the camp dining room, there was an abundance of fresh milk; none of the tinned product, diluted, such as is to be had in so many wilderness habitations.

In places, the trail was bordered with the most luxuriant moss, through which twined and intertwined the delicate green leaves of the creeping snowberry, on which were hanging hundreds of the ripened China-white fruit. Both leaves and fruit have a very delicate flavor, likened by some writers to that of wintergreen, by others to the flavor of sweet birch

We turned a little angle in the road and there, directly at our left, was Dwelley. our destination, alone in the silent woods, set down like a little gem among the low lying hills. Hook Baited With An Angle Worm Brought Trout From Spring Hole

A WOODLAND WALK TO DWELLEY POND, THE ONLY WATERS NEAR SOURNAHUNK LAKE WHERE THE LOWLY WORM MIGHT LEGALLY BE USED—SUPPOSED MOOSE TRACKS MADE BY COWS—BUILDING A BIG LAKE SHIP IN THE WILDERNESS—"PADDLING OUT," AND A CALL AT SUNCOOK—

John Jones, I think, was acting milkman, as well as being lord of the backboard. Surely, John must lead a busy life, for each day, at the camp dining room, there was an abundance of fresh milk; none of the tinned product, diluted, such as is to be had in so many wilderness habitations.

In places, the trail was bordered with the most luxuriant moss, through which twined and intertwined the delicate green leaves of the creeping snowberry, on which were hanging hundreds of the ripened China-white fruit. Both leaves and fruit have a very delicate flavor, likened by some writers to that of wintergreen, by others to the flavor of sweet birch.

We turned a little angle in the road and there, directly at our left, was Dwelley, our destination, alone in the silent woods, set down like a little gem among the low lying hills. Its surface was smooth as a mirror, only disturbed here and there by a hungry trout coming up for some unfortunate fly whose wing power had failed to take him to the friendly opposite shore. On the bosom of this secluded little body of water were faithfully reflected the many pointed trees that had found root along the shore line. I walked still nearer the shore, balanced myself on the unsteady floating bridge of two or three logs that connected the moss-bordered, boggy shore line with a little hummock of growth that stood, like a miniature island, some ten feet distant.

An upturned canoe on the shore was in readiness for another paddle. But from the rather insecure footing on the little island the whole of the lake was in plain sight. And over all was that indescribable silence of the forest, that stillness that can only be found far removed from the noisome haunts of our complicated and superficial civilization. But the flies were there. Somehow, flies and mosquitoes constitute an ever-present life of the woods. One can never be wholly removed from both of them. The 1926 brood of savage mosquitoes, to be sure, and the bloodthirsty black flies, were resting from their labors. Save for an occasional straggler, their yearly task of spreading misery to every human being they could discover was at an end. But as I carefully walked back over the wiggling logs to the shore, up rose a perfect swarm of big buzzing, lively flies. They were flying low, thick as a swarm of bees, hovering about something on the ground, out of sight among the bushes that grew just at the right of the trail. A step nearer, and the mystery was solved. Another dead porcupine, shot, in all probability, by the pair of youthful nimrods who, about sundry other trails, had left mute evidence of their skill, "to be eaten by the vultures," as they had so intelligently expressed it.

I had been told that, located a few rods back from the lake, was a famous spring hole. One guide had remarked there were few trout in Dwelley Possibly he knew better, and wanted to save the good fishing for himself.

But Alec, my French Canadian friend, had said: "You be surprise, Mr. Jinnis, how many good fish some man will catch over in Dwelley. Go back in spring hole. Sometimes that place full of them; good ones, too." Our wood road continued past the spring hole; continued, I was told, right on through the wilderness to the paper-making town of Millinnocket. It was so swampy near the springhole that a wide corduroy road of big spruce logs had been constructed just back of the clear, white sandy bottoms, where the springs bubbled up their crystal pure waters. Every long log in that road sunk a bit when one set foot upon it, and I crept across with infinite caution, lest the motion would disturb still waters and the fish that I felt sure were there, ready to grab my soon to be proffered angle worm. Creeping up slowly, on hands and knees, the speckled beauties were in plain sight, resting just above the sand, their fins all aquiver. To the angler, 'twas a charming sight. Cautiously the baited hook was sunk, down, down, slowly settling nearer and nearer to the sandy bottom—and the hungry trout. A tremendous yank on the line, a quick pull on the crooked alder that I had cut for the rod, and out came an exceedingly animated eight-inch tout that was very much a beauty. "I'll take but five of them," I said. "Just one apiece for our party, and no more." It didn't take long to secure the allotted number. It was enough. But in getting them, one hook was broken on a fish that never left the water It was a savage bite, and maybe, in my excitement, I pulled too hard. But my haste and needless expenditure of energy meant a lost hook, and I had but two; and one of my five precious little angleworms went along with the hook. This was, to me, perhaps the best fishing of the trip. For here were plenty of good-sized brook trout actually waiting to be caught But it required little skill. Simply drop a worm down, keep out of sight and be quiet, and the fish are quickly on shore.

We reached the camps in ample time for our 5.30 meal, the last of the day, and next morning our five speckled beauties were fried for our breakfast, which, needless to relate, were simply delicious.

But our delightful vacation days at Sourdnahunk lake were drawing to a close. The days, not unlike other days of vacation, had passed all too swiftly. One fine morning Mr. Sanborn suggested that, providing the weather was good on the morrow, that we "paddle out." A storm was due before many days, he thought, and 'twould be no pleasure to paddle down to the dam in a rain storm, nor would the buckboard ride be especially enjoyable at such a time. Reluctantly did we, that night, walk about the little cabin that had been our temporary home, gather up the clothing, fossil rocks, flies, fish lines, etc. and pack our bags. It even seemed, this last night, almost a sin to spend in uneventful slumber those final delightful and hushed hours.

For during several previous nights, the clear, star-dotted sky, illumined by a glorious moon, had been nothing short of magnificent. Retiring, as almost everybody at Sourdnahunk camps had a way of doing, at the most unusual hour of from 7.30 to 8 o'clock, 'twas quite natural for one to awaken, quite refreshed, in the middle of the night, feeling, perhaps, that it was high time to begin the joys of another day's program. Then, at times, the waves had a way of making, along the little rockstrewn beach, some considerable commotion.

One evening, in paddling past one rocky shore, Elizabeth and I had fancied that, nearby, we could hear a waterfall. The mockery was indeed quite complete. Those of my readers who have visited Niagara Falls will remember the first indistinct, distant roar of the mighty cataract. Not at all similar to the mighty thunder of the nearby, invincible falls, but a faint, vague, monotonous distant hum, as of constantly falling water. Such was the sound that greeted us from among the numberless, smooth, wave-kissed rocks on that particular evening, when, at the hushed twilight hour, we paddled the canoe toward Phoenix camps. And sometimes the same weird sound would greet us through the wide-open door of our cabin. as, in the wee small hours of early morning, our eyes, refreshed by six or seven hours of absolutely silent slumber, would suddenly pop wide open and look out across the moon-lit waters of the lake.

One night appeared especially light. The round moon was slowly sinking down among the spruces that grew directly across the lake from the front of our cabin. It shone full and clear and marvelously brilliant straight into the wide-open doorway. To watch it slowly, slowly settling, nearer and nearer the horizon line, was a sight most enthralling. And we watched it—saw it move straight down behind the pointed top of a big spruce, saw it sink lower and lower back of the tree trunk, until, at last, it appeared to reluctantly make its exit behind the distant hill. But, above it, it left a glow in the sky that, for some time, bespoke of a glory that had, down there in the Maine woods, but so recently been ours to enjoy.

We packed our baggage down the rocky shore to our two canoes, carefully arranged it where best it would serve for ballast, stepped aboard, took a good, long look at the spot that had, for eight days, served as an enchanted vacation land, waved a good-bye to those on shore, pushed off and headed our frail craft straight toward the outlet and the dam.

A favoring breeze helped us on our way Among the waters near the shore the square-tails were jumping. But our tackle was all packed away. Our Maine fishing trip for 1926 was now nearing its end. In the quiet waters near the dam, the mink, moving noiselessly about among the fallen trees and driftwood, came out, as if to take a last look and bid us a fond farewell. Several moose-birds, also,—Canada jays,—the first we had seen, suddenly made their appearance and flitted nervously among the trees. These birds of the silent places, I was told, become exceedingly tame when they live about the lumber camps—so tame, indeed, that they often will take the proffered food from human hands.

We climbed up on the monster timbers of the dam and had a final look at the quiet pool from which we had so easily taken so many small trout, later to transfer them, quite uninjured, to the quiet waters of the big lake. A few of the lively little fellows were still jumping. But all too soon were we summoned by John Jones, and politely asked to take our places on the buckboard,—all except Walter, he had preferred to walk on ahead,—and our three-mile journey of jolts had begun.

The road was quite as rough as when we had entered, but, more accustomed to the uneven movements of the buckboard I took more time to observe our interesting and slow-passing surroundings, more especially to take side glances at the swift-flowing Sourdnahunk stream, wild and charming vistas of which quite often came into view. At one place our road passed very close to a sizeable beaver dam that had been carefully thrown across the little river. The beaver-built structure was a rough looking affair, but it held back enough of the water to form a good-sized pond for the industrious and hard-working little animals by whose patient efforts it had been constructed.

The automobile was finally reached, our baggage was transferred, good-byes said to our careful driver, and we were soon rolling comfortably along over a good dirt road and safely started on our homeward journey.

After traveling for some miles, a cross road, starting at right angles from our wilderness highway, led off to a little Great Northern Paper Co. settlement called Suncook Dam, situated close by the site of a small dam of earlier days, which had, however, been completely obliterated when the monster dam at Ripogenus had flooded the waters back over the surrounding country for a distance of nearly forty miles.

Here we found well-kept and attractive white houses, substantial wharves, boats of various sizes and shapes, ranging all the way from canoes to lake steamers, one big boat was in process of construction

This new steamer was 92 feet long, an oil burner, in every way modern, with tanks for carrying 5,000 gallons of crude oil, which is used as fuel. Her engines would develop 360 horse power. It was indeed a strange sight to see this big boat being built away off there in the Maine wilderness.

Up the long, inclined plank walk we traveled, from the ground to the partly-completed deck, where ship carpenters and caulkers and steam fitters were busily engaged at their various tasks. The old boat was too small, they told us, was getting old, wasn't powerful enough, must make way for something more up to date. We had an idea that the logging business done on these waters was something tremendous. And we believed it, were sure of it, when informed that during this year of 1926 no less than 370,000 cords of pulp wood had been sent to tumble their watery way down through the concrete sluiceway that we had seen built in along the rock-ribbed side of Ripogenus dam.

This wood after being rolled into the water, is pushed together and securely held between monster log booms, from 4,000 to 6,000 cords to a boom. And these rafts are then towed by the steamers to the head of the dam, after which the sluiceways are open and they continue way down the river to Millinocket.

A small boat made daily trips to and from Chesuncook, a settlement of about 50 people, presided over by a local king, A. B. Smith, native born and god father to all the people—even the big boat bears his name.

The captain of this passenger-carrying craft was at the dock, knew Mr. Sanborn, and wanted us all to take a ride with him back to the settlement. Much did I desire to accept his kind invitation, for long years ago had I learned of this thriving community, originally founded, I was told, by a few people who thus voluntarily buried themselves in the big wilderness at the time of the Civil War. Up the river they went, on and on in their staunch canoes; went so far that they had no fear of being molested, or even found. But the strange story of the survival of this colony is not a part of my fishing trip. Its an entirely different narrative. Sometime I hope to see the place, and, if I am ever thus favored, I may tell Courier readers something about it.

A short stop at Greenville, and we moved on, passing the night at Blethen House at Dover-Foxcroft. This was the same hotel about which I wrote in a previous letter—the "homey" hotel, where one is made to feel that he indeed is a "guest." It chanced to be the eventful night of the big prize fight, and everybody in the house was invited to go up to the parlor, there to listen in on the radio.

But the radio balked, utterly failed to tell us a thing. That unaccommodating radio received enough of special attention that night to last any well-ordered outfit for a lifetime. But it steadfastly refused to utter an audible sound. It behavd as though it didn't believe in prize fights and would have nothing to do with them. The attractive wife of one of the proprietors of the hotel was busily engaged in operating the radio. Tackling the job with confidence her patience was soon all but exhausted. She wanted complete silence. And, to me, it appeared that she was getting it. Then some one thoughtlessly opened a newspaper. "Please! Please!!" she implored. "Please don't make such a noise; I think I am beginning to hear it now." The obedient offending man, with a smile, left his paper unopened. "There, now everybody be quiet; please don't breathe!" came the orders from the front. That settled it for me Without the breath of life I'd surely die, and I didn't want to pass out so far away from home. And so, on rubber soles, as quietly as possible, I tiptoed out to a place where breathing was in no way restricted.

Well, we were soon back home again. 'Twas a splendid outing,—restful in the extreme,—a far better vacation than my pen can properly picture I had intended to cover it all in two stories. But, there was much to relate. I only hope that such members of the big Courier family as have been interested have been able to get from these letters something of the joy that came to Elizabeth and myself from having been privileged to take the trip.

Better is a dry morsel, and quietness therewith, than a house full of sacrifices with strife.—Proverbs 17:1.

Lesson for November 28

GIDEON AND THE THREE HUNDRED

LESSON TEXT—Judges 7:1-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Gideon and His Brave Band.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Brave Leader.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Gideon and the Three Hundred.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Working Together With God.

Because of Israel's sin, God permitted them to be brought under the cruel yoke of bondage at the hands of the Midianites. So grievous was this affliction that they hid in dens, caves and strongholds (Judg. 6:2). In their distress they cried unto the Lord and He sent deliverance to them through the judgeship of Gideon. The angel of the Lord appeared to him while at the post of duty. Gideon hesitated. His hesitancy was not due to unbelief but to modesty and cautiousness. He came from an obscure and uninfluential family (Judg. 6:15). Before going forward in this enterprise he wished to be doubly sure that God had called him (Judg. 6:36-40). The tangible evidence was furnished by means of the fleece. Gideon began his reformatory work at once (Judg. 6:25-27). He not only began at once, but began at home. This is God's order.

I. The Opposing Armies (v. 1).

Gideon and his army arose early on the eventful day of his victory and encamped by the spring of Herrod. Over against them was the host of Midianites in battle array. Gideon's army was quite insignificant in comparison with the Midianites.

II. The Sifting of Gideon's Army (vv. 2-8).

At Gideon's call, 32,000 men responded ready for the struggle. This seemed a small army to go against the Midianite army—135,000 strong, but God said even this was too many, lest they be led to boasting and self-confidence. Their real danger was not in their small army but in their pride. All that were faint-hearted were allowed to go back, leaving only 10,000. There were 22,000 cowards in that group of men and worst of all, they were not ashamed to confess it. Still, this was too many. When God was through with His sifting process only 300 remained. The 10,000 were brave men, but not of proper quality and fitness. Those who lapped the water showed alertness and watchfulness.

III. God Gives Encouragement to Gideon (vv. 9-15).

God commanded Gideon to go down to the Midianite camp where he would hear something that would cheer his heart and strengthen his hands. God always comes to cheer us when our hearts are faint. When he came near he heard a man tell a dream which was that of a barley cake tumbling into the camp and smiting it. He also heard the interpretation given to that dream which made Gideon to be that cake. This greatly cheered his heart and strengthened him for his work and caused him to break forth in praise to God. The barley cake is a very insignificant thing—a very cheap affair in itself, but with the hand of God upon it it would be sufficient to spread consternation among the Midianites and bring destruction upon their armies. No matter how weak and insignificant a man may be, if God is with him he shall not fall.

IV. God Gives Victory to Gideon (vv. 16-23).

His attack was unique. The whole matter was of faith (Heb. 11:32). The ground of his faith was God's Word and the token which He had given him. Gideon with his 300 men formed into three companies, each man being provided with a lamp concealed within a pitcher. Thus armed they surrounded the camp of the Midianites. They were all instructed to keep their eyes upon their leader and imitate him. We too are to keep our eyes on our Leader, Christ, and to ever do as He does. At the proper moment they blew their trumpets and broke their pitchers, giving opportunity for their lights to shine out. This awful crash of breaking pitchers, followed by the sound of trumpets accompanied by the shout "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon" threw the Midianites into a panic, causing them to fight amongst themselves: 120,000 were thus slain, leaving but 15,000 of that mighty army (Judg. 8-10).

In making the application to ourselves in this age, we can think of the sound of the trumpets as representing prayer or calling to God; the torches as the light of the Gospel; the pitchers our human nature, the whole as this treasure in earthen vessels.

EZRA F. BEAL'S JOURNAL

MANY COLD BLUSTERING WINTER DAYS—BUSINESS LIVELY IN NORWAY VILLAGE

Edited by Don C. Seitz

Dec. 7, 1856—Sunday. A snow storm, but little snow yet. The past week has been warm and on Thursday evening last a smart rain. The warm weather continued until today.

A train of freight cars ran off the track on the Back Cove Bridge in Portland last Wednesday; 3 cars were pitch'd into the water, drowning one man, Mr. Gorden, of Gorham, N. H., 3 others were injur'd.

Rev. Mr. Miner of Boston lectur'd in the Universalist Church here last Monday. Mr. Whipple of Boston will lecture on the 25th inst.

James Crockett is yet at work with us and is cutting and hauling timber and wood from the Brown lot.

Dec. 25—Thursday. Stormy and squally all day, some snow, some hail and some rain, epsecially in Portland. In Norway no rain but moist snow and cold. In the evening Mr. Whipple of Boston lectur'd on Courage. Very stormy and windy and small congregation.

Dec. 26—Friday morning, clear and very windy. The snow is drifting about very much and very cold.

Dec. 28—Sunday. Cold and pleasant. Yesterday was very cold and blusterin~ denoting a rough March as (pr. Christmas) today denotes April. There is now good sleighing back of Portland and rather poor in Portland.

Last evening the members of the Universalist Society had a meeting; 8 or 10 met, but decided nothing. The impression is that about $300 can be rais'd the coming year for Mr. Ford and this will afford preaching one-half of the time only.

The Westerly Pier of the Great Wharves in Portland for the Big Steamers is nearly finish'd. Cummings and Brock have commenc'd the store sheds on the westerly one, but find it very cold work.

James Crockett finish'd work by the month last Tuesday, making up 9 months at $15. Webster will take care of the Barn the remainder of winter.

Jan. 4, 1857—Sunday morning. Quite pleasant after a snow storm yesterday. There is very good sleighing in the County of Oxford—toward Portland quite poor.

The Legislature commences a session at Augusta next Wednesday.

Considerable interest is felt in regard to a Senator to be elected for the next 6 years. Mr. Hamlin has many powerful friends and will probably be elected.

Last evening a few of the Universalists met at A. C. Denison's and decided to settle up with Mr. Ford in full for last year and to pay him up till March the present year with the prospect that the Society will be unable to employ him but a portion of the time during the coming year.

C. P. True, Joseph Danforth and Frank Danforth have stop'd payment during last week. Wm. Danforth is the owner of the goods at North Stratford.

Jan. 11—Sunday. Very stormy. Commenc'd last eve and continues snowing this morning at 10 o'clock. So far there is about 12 inches of snow on the ground and much blown about.

The Legislature has organiz'd by the choice of Joseph Williams, President of the Senate and Spofford, Speaker of the House, Alden Jackson, Secretary of State and B. D. Peck, Treasurer. All things move along smoothly at Augusta.

Business is lively in this village and more so than in any other country village around.

Grinding is pretty abundant at the Mill, but the wheat is poor and but little fall wheat is sold.

Jan. 18—Sunday. Fair weather, but extreme cold; last night was very cold. There has been no moderate weather since December came in.

Mr. Hamlin has been elected Senator for the long term and Amos Nourse for the short term. The Legislature are getting along well at Augusta.

The sleighing is good. Mr. John Hatch has been hauling timber to the saw mill from the S. Paris lot 2 weeks past.

Geo. Roberts of this village, has been appointed Deputy Sheriff. A. D. White of Buckfield is the Sheriff for the County.

Bounded by the "Three Hundred Fifty Foot Strip," property of the grantee, and by the road. Any fence desired on the southerly boundary line must be erected by grantee.

Waterford—Etta M. Lebroke to Sadie M. Rowe, both of Waterford, homestead farm of about 230 acres with buildings in Waterford, conveyed in four parcels. Transferred on condition that the grantee shall support the grantor and her husband, Samuel L. Lebroke, on the premises and provide decent burial. Should there be failure in fulfilling conditions, the title reverts to the grantor.

Waterford—Myrtie K. Phillips, Waterville, and Winnie D. K. McLaughlin, San Gabriel, Calif., to Freeman Hapgood, parcel in Waterford, being part of the Artemus Brown place, formerly owned by Charlotte H. Swan and conveyed to Harris B. Kneeland in 1900. Bounded by field of Daniel T. Adams on westerly side of road leading from Waterford to North Bridgton; and by the Scroggin Brook.

BRIDGTON ACADEMY

Monday Coach Small issued a call for candidates for girls' basket ball. A good sized squad turned out and with five letter girls of last year back the Academy has an excellent chance of turning out another winning team.

Beginning Tuesday night, the annual inter-class games were held in Ingall's Hall. Tuesday the P. G.'s played the Seniors, Wednesday the Juniors played the Sophomores and Freshmen, and Thursday the winners played. The P. G.'s easily won the series, defeating the Seniors 32-15 and the Juniors 59-8. The standing is as follows:

P. G.'s	won 2, lost 0 pc. 1.000
Juniors	won 1, lost 1 pc. .500
Seniors	won 0 lost 1 pc. .000
Soph.-Fresh.	won 0, lost 1, pc. .000

Varsity practice began Friday night with fine prospects for a good team this year. Two of last year's letter men are back, "Wopper" Deetjen of Portland and Tudor Hutchings of Gardiner, and many fine players have come in from other schools.

This week the preliminaries for the Brown prize speaking are being held. Forty were selected from the three upper classes to speak before the student body in chapel with the teachers as judges. Of these twenty will be chosen for the semi-finals. These speak before three judges and ten are chosen to compete for the prizes.

Thurday, Mr. Andrew Soldant, county secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was at the Academy to see about organizing a Hi-Y club. Many schools have these clubs and they are a great aid in developing the character of the students. The boys, who were interested, met with Mr. Soldant in the library after supper and decided upon the following officers:

Pres.—Ralph Long.
Vice Pres.—Leigh Flint.
Sec. and Treas.—Philip Wilbur.
Leader—Mr. Edgerly.
Advisory Com.—Rev. Witham of Harrison, Rev. Bull of Waterford, and Principal, Mr. Sampson.

The Sophomore class met on Thursday to elect a new president as the previous president, Hilda Roberts, left school Howard Millett of Waterford was elected.

The Freshman class at Bridgton Academy held their first meeting of the year in the chapel and under the direction of Faculty Advisor, Stuart Edgerly, Dartmouth 1924, they elected their first set of officers for the ensuing year:

Pres.—Betty Kane of Rangeley.
Vice Pres.—Ruth Rounds of Waterford.
Sec.—Charles Bennett of Sweden.
Treas.—Ruth E. Johnson of Harrison.

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!

STATE OF MAINE

Oxford, ss.
To the Honorable Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court to be held at Paris, within and for said County of Oxford, on the second Tuesday of February, A. D. 1927.

Respectfully Represents, Vivian Brown, resident at Norway, in the County of Oxford and State of Maine that she was lawfully married to Ira Brown of Rumford, in the County of Oxford and State of Maine at Errol in the County of Coos and State of New Hampshire on the 13th day of November A. D. 1893, by Mr. Bragg, Justice of the Peace, duly authorized to solemnize marriages therein;

That the Libellant and Libellee cohabited in this State after their said marriage;

That the Libellant resided in this State when the cause of divorce accrued as hereinafter set forth;

That the Libellant has resided in this State in good faith for one year prior to the commencement of these proceedings;

That the Libellee is a resident of this State;

That the Libellant has ever been faithful to her marriage obligations, but that the said Libellee has been unmindful of the same;

That there is no collusion between your Libellant and the said Libellee to obtain a divorce;

That being of sufficient ability and being able to labor and provide for her, said Libellee grossly, wantonly and cruelly refuses or neglects to provide suitable maintenance for your Libellant;

That since mariage the said Libelee has been addicted to gross and confirmed habits of intoxication from the use of intoxicating liquors, opium or other drugs;

That said Libellee has been guilty of extreme cruelty toward your said Libellant;

That the said Libellee has been guilty of cruel and abusive treatment toward your said Libellant as follows:

That oftimes he has cursed, sworn at and reviled your libellant, calling her vile names and threatening her with injury.

That he has at divers times with force and arms made physical assault upon your libellant and struck and severely hurt, wounded and bruised your libellant.

That without just cause, he has been insanely jealous of your libellant and has charged her with wrong and immoral conduct and adultery with other men, whereby by reason of all these acts of cruel and abusive treatment, your libellant's health has been gravely affected and she has been caused to suffer mental anguish and physical and bodily impairment and has frequently by reason of these same acts been compelled as a result to require the attention of physicians and has been confined to the house and to her bed with illness and is now in a critical state due in part to the abuses suffered at the hands of her aforesaid husband.

Wherefore, your Libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and the said Libellee may be decreed.

Also that reasonable alimony may be decreed to your Libellant out of the estate of the said Libellee, or, in lieu thereof, that a specific sum may be paid to her by him;

And your Libellant further alleges that the residence of said Libellee is unknown to your Libellant and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

Dated at Norway, Maine, this 3rd day of November, A. D. 1926.

VIVIAN BROWN, Libellant.

STATE OF MAINE

Oxford, ss. Norway, Me., Nov. 3, A. D. 1926

Personally appeared Vivian Brown, above named Libellant, and made oath that the foregoing allegation as to the residence of the Libellee is true.

Before me,
ARETAS E. STEARNS, Jus. of the Peace.

Life Industry Boosting Maine

With the opening of the new plant of the New England Portland Cement and Lime Co. and with surveys already under way for another cement plant in the northern part of the city, Rockland becomes the home of two of the largest companies of this kind in the world.

Commenting on the new plant, Walter S. Wyman, President of the Central Maine Power Company, says:

"Production of lime has been the backbone of Knox County business for many years. The opening of the new plant marks a distinct forward step in the industrial life of the County and of Maine.

"When their proposed cement plant is completed it will give the State such a business boost as it has not had for many years."

Industrial moving pictures taken under the direction of Philip Ricker Shorey, Director of Publicity for the State of Maine Associates, have been released. Maine was put before the eyes of over twenty million people. This has also been done with various other industries and agricultural and recreational subjects, over fifty such subjects having been released on Maine throughout the United States. This work has been done in connection with the general state development program in letting others outside of the State know more of what Maine has to offer along all lines for future growth and development.

ALBANY—HUNT'S CORNER

Round Mt. Grange

Round Mountain Grange held its regular meeting, Nov. 20, with unusually good attendance. After the business of the meeting, a fine Thanksgiving program was given. Several of our members have been at Portland at the National Grange Meeting and report the most interesting meeting they ever attended. The following program was given:

Music Grange
History of Thanksgiving Day Alta Bird
Thanksgiving Story Dora Berkley
Roll Call, "Something That I Have to Be Thankful For"
Short talk on Thanksgiving Mrs. A. A. Bruce
Question, "How Does Thanksgiving Day of Present Time Compare With That of One Hundred Years Ago?"

Mrs. Edwina Kimball, seventy-one years of age, recited a poem learned as a school girl, which seemed especially fitting as a regular summing up of our whole Thanksgiving program. It follows:

"The year has rolled 'round.
It is Thanksgiving Day!
Come home from the college.
Ye mirth loving youth!
Come home from the factories.
Ann, Katie and Ruth.
From the anvil, the counter
The farm. Come away!
Home, home, with you, home
It is Thanksgiving Day."

"Now children revisit the darling old place
Brothers and sisters long parted, embrace.
The family ring is united once more.
And the same voices shout
At the old cottage door!"
The table is spread
And the dinner is dressed
The cooks and the mothers
Have all done their best.
No Calif of Bagdad ever saw such display
Or dreamed of a treat like a Thanksgiving Day.

"The grandfather smiles on the innocent mirth,
And blesses the Power that has guarded his hearth,
He remembers no troubles
Nor feels no decay,
But thinks his whole life
Has been Thanksgiving Day."

"The praise for the past, and
The present we sing;
And trustfully wait
What the future will bring.
Let doubt and repining
Be banished away —
And the whole of our lives
Be a Thanksgiving Day!"

Next after the program, came a lunch of hot coffee, sandwiches, doughnuts and cheese. The Rev. W. I. Bull was a visitor, also two visitors from Bethel Grange. Next regular meeting Dec. 4.

The Right and Wrong Way to Make Your Will

Many men attempt to draw their own Wills. This is the wrong way to make a Will. Such "homemade" Wills are dangerous for they are written with little knowledge of the legal requirements and phraseology of will making.

If you have written your own Will, take it to your Attorney and have him test it in order to make sure that it complies with all of the requirements of the law and that its legal interpretation carries out your wishes.

The proper way to make a Will is to jot down brief memoranda as to how you wish your estate distributed. Take them to your Attorney for his guidance in drawing your Will. Only a competent Attorney should ever draw a Will.

By naming this Bank as your Executor and Trustee, your affairs will be left in the care of an organization with a thoroughly trained staff, adequate experience, ample resources and continuous existence.

Ideal Vecto Heater

For Smaller Homes and Other Buildings

Price $99.00

Circulates Healthful Warmth Throughout the Home for the Usual Cost of Heating One Room

The Ideal Vecto Heater is a clean, compact, self-contained heating unit—a perfected, scientific application of nature's way of spreading warmth.

Instead of radiating an intense heat for a short distance in one room only, the Vecto Heater distributes an even, comfortable warmth through every room. This it accomplishes by its very extensive and scientifically designed heating surface.

Large volumes of air are continuously warmed at moderate temperatures. In accordance with the natural law of gravitation, the warmed air rises and circulates steadily throughout the home, bringing clean and healthful warmth to every nook and corner. The Ideal Vecto Heater thus actually warms and circulates the entire body of air in a home, six to ten times each hour. Yet because of its special, exclusive features of design, it consumes no more coal than is ordinarily used by old-fashioned heaters to warm one room!

B. W. Harmon Place Burned, Sunday—Ralph Stearns Here for Week End—Charles Sanborn Passed Away—Lakeside Grange Supper and Entertainment.

The Wyonegonic Literary Club met with Mrs. Mercy and Mrs. Mary Gray, at their home on Front Street, Thursday afternoon. The following program was enjoyed:

Reading of Collect.....Sec., Miss Ricker
Business
Roll Call. Nature Quotations
Paper, Famous Women of New England.....Mrs. Mercy Gray
Reading, A Case for Diplomacy.....Mrs. Annah Whitney

After adjournment, Mrs. Genevieve Walker served dainty refreshments. Among those present were Mrs. N. E. Whitney, Mrs. C. S. Whitney, Mrs. Walter Dudley, Mrs. Thomas Ford, Mrs. F. P. Freeman, Mrs. M. H. Pitts, Mrs. C. N. L. Walker, Miss Josephine Ricker and Mrs. J. P. Blake.

On Sunday morning, fire destroyed the fine two and one-half story house belonging to B. W. Harmon, on Hillside Ave., and occupied by him, with his family. The blaze was discovered by the son, Lynton Harmon, of Portland, who, with his wife, and daughter, were spending the week end. It had made such a rapid headway that the place was soon a roaring furnace. Because of inadequate fire protection, it was impossible to save the place and a few household goods were carried to places of safety by willing friends. Bridgton fire engine was called to assist and helped in saving the Smith house, next door. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon moved into the furnished rent over "The Country Store." They suffered severe loss from fire many years ago and have the sincere sympathy of their friends in this trouble. This home was one of the best and had many modern luxuries. Althena Day of Naples was spending the week end with her friend, Eleanor Harmon.

Ralph Stearns of Portland spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Stearns.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pitts, Mrs. Hiram Willard and Mrs. Lord all of Sanford spent Sunday with relatives in town.

At the Poverty Ball held on Friday evening, the first prize for ladies went to Mrs. John Keene and the first for men to Mr. Reynolds of Bridgton.

Calvary Community Church

Miss Harriet Ohler, Y. W. C. A. secretary of Portland, was the principal speaker at a Mother and Daughter banquet held in Woodland Hall, Wednesday evening, Nov. 19, under the auspices of the Ladies' Circle of the Calvary Community church while Bridgton Academy orchestra played a stirring march. Over 150 mothers and daughters marched into the banquet hall and took their places at the tables. Twelve young men acted as waiters. The menu was prepared previously by the ladies.

During the banquet the orchestra played and the guests, under the leadership of Mrs. Hobart Denison, sang many old and new songs.

Mrs. F. P. Bennett, president of the Ladies' Circle, acted as toast mistress. The first speaker to be introduced was Mrs. L. W. Witham, who spoke "To the Daughters from a Mother." Mrs. Witham spoke of the wonderful joy of motherhood but also of the responsibility which it brings with it, the care and anxiety which accompany the pleasure in molding the little lives. Miss Evelyn Whitney spoke for the daughters on "What kind of Mothers do we want?" Miss Whitney summed up her remarks in the words, "We want mothers who are pals, who remember they were young once and try to understand us." The address of the evening was inspiring both to mothers and daughters. Miss Ohler not only urged the mothers to be understanding and open-minded, but she pleaded with the daughters to open their hearts to their mothers and to appreciate their interest and advice "Make confidants of your mothers, girls," she said With story and illustration, Miss Ohler held the attention of even the youngest daughter present and her message was heard and appreciated.

At the close of the program a humorous reading entitled, "Daisy's Music Practice Hour," was given by Mrs. Clifford Denison.
